An Architect is configuring a data replication schedule.
Which task(s) can be removed In order to reduce replication times?

- A. Static content
- B. Search Indexes
- C. Campaign
- D. Storefront URLs

Answer: A

Explanation:
Reducing the replication times in data synchronization can be effectively achieved by removing or reducing frequency of tasks that are less critical or that do not change frequently. Static content, such as images and static texts that do not change often, can be safely removed from frequent replication schedules (Answer B). This adjustment will reduce the data load and frequency of updates, thereby speeding up the overall replication process. Unlike dynamic content like campaigns, search indexes, or URLs that might change frequently and impact user experience or site functionality if not updated, static content does not typically necessitate immediate replication, making it a suitable candidate for removal to enhance replication efficiency.
