ASET Ethics Examination-ASET Professional Practice Exam (PPE) Sample Questions (Q78-Q83):

NEW QUESTION # 78

Which of the following principles is considered to be the most important in the ASET Code of Ethics?

- A. Report to the appropriate agencies any hazardous, illegal or unethical professional decisions or practices by other members or others.
- B. Hold paramount the safety, health and welfare of the public, the protection of the environment and the promotion of health and safety within the workplace.
- C. Uphold the principle of appropriate and adequate compensation for the performance of their work.
- D. Present clearly to employers and clients the possible consequences if professional decisions or judgments are overruled or disregarded.

Answer: B

Explanation:

The cornerstone of all engineering and applied science technology regulation in Canada is the protection of the public. Consequently, the first and most critical principle in the ASET Code of Ethics is to "Hold paramount the safety, health and welfare of the public, the protection of the environment and the promotion of health and safety within the workplace." The word "paramount" is legally and ethically significant; it means this principle absolutely overrides all other duties, loyalties, or obligations. If a professional's duty to their employer (to save money), their client (to finish a project quickly), or themselves (to secure compensation) conflicts with public safety or environmental protection, the safety of the public must legally and ethically win every single time. All other ethical guidelines-such as reporting unethical behavior, presenting consequences, or maintaining confidentiality-are ultimately subservient to and designed to support this singular, overarching goal of societal protection.

NEW QUESTION # 79

A regulated member on a work site is asked to coordinate the disposal of explosives left behind by a previous employer. In meeting with construction staff on the site, the member learns that none of the staff is trained to handle explosives. Which of the following should be the member's first course of action in this situation?

- A. Notify the work site supervisor that the disposal will not be carried out, giving the reasons for refusal.
- B. Set up training for the construction staff in the proper handling of explosives.
- C. Contact the previous employer to arrange for disposal of the explosives.
- D. Allow the construction staff to dispose of the explosives under careful supervision.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The right-and duty-to refuse unsafe work is a fundamental pillar of both provincial Occupational Health and Safety (OHS) legislation and the ASET Code of Ethics. Regulated members are ethically bound to hold paramount the safety of the public and the workplace, and to only undertake assignments when qualified by training and experience. Explosives are highly regulated, intrinsically dangerous materials that require specialized, legally certified blasters or disposal units to handle.

Because neither the member nor the construction staff has the requisite training, attempting to dispose of them or even "supervise" untrained staff is illegal and catastrophically dangerous. The absolute first mandatory action is to immediately invoke the right to refuse unsafe work. The member must formally notify the work site supervisor that the disposal cannot and will not be carried out by the current team, explicitly citing the lack of specialized training and the severe safety hazard as the reasons for refusal. Only after the task is halted can safe alternatives (like hiring an explosive disposal contractor) be pursued.

NEW QUESTION # 80

Which of the following is the main federal law regulating the environment in Canada?

- A. The Canadian Environmental Protection Act
- B. The Canadian Environmental Management Act
- C. The Canadian Environmental Bill of Rights Act
- D. The Canadian Environmental Assessment Act

Answer: A

Explanation:

In Canada, environmental regulation is a shared responsibility between federal, provincial, and municipal governments. However, the primary piece of federal legislation concerning environmental protection is the Canadian Environmental Protection Act, 1999 (CEPA). CEPA is a comprehensive legal framework aimed at preventing pollution and protecting the environment and human health. It provides the federal government with the authority to assess and manage the risks posed by toxic substances, regulate emissions and effluents from federal works and undertakings, govern the disposal of waste at sea, and control the import/export of hazardous wastes. ASET professionals, particularly those working in chemical, environmental, or civil disciplines, must be intimately familiar with CEPA regulations to ensure their designs, projects, and waste management protocols do not violate federal law. Failing to adhere to CEPA can result in severe legal penalties for both the professional and the employer, as well as catastrophic harm to the public and the ecosystem.

NEW QUESTION # 81

Which of the following examples describes a conflict of interest?

- A. Running a small business part-time without informing an employer.
- B. Accepting a benefit in accordance with an employer's gift policy.
- C. Having a difference of opinion with another colleague in the organization.

- D. Using the skills developed in a current position to secure new employment.

Answer: A

Explanation:

A conflict of interest arises when a professional's personal or financial interests interfere, or have the potential to interfere, with their professional duties, judgment, and loyalty to their primary employer or client. Running a small business part-time without informing the primary employer is a classic example of a potential or actual conflict of interest. This secondary employment could drain the member's time and energy, potentially leading to the unauthorized use of the employer's resources, proprietary information, or client lists for personal gain. Even if the part-time business does not directly compete with the employer, the lack of disclosure prevents the employer from accurately assessing the business risk. The ASET Code of Ethics requires members to fully disclose any circumstances that might be construed as a conflict of interest without delay. By failing to inform the employer, the member violates the ethical duty of fidelity and transparency. Open communication allows the employer to implement safeguards or formally approve the activity, thereby mitigating the ethical breach.

NEW QUESTION # 82

Which of the following statements describes breach of contract?

- A. A failure to review the work of another professional
- B. A failure to exercise due care in the performance of professional duties
- C. A failure to declare a financial loss
- D. A failure to complete the obligations in a contract

Answer: D

Explanation:

In Canadian contract law, a contract is a legally binding agreement between two or more parties that creates enforceable obligations. A "breach of contract" occurs when one of the parties simply fails to complete the obligations, duties, or deliverables explicitly agreed upon in that contract, without a valid legal excuse. This could manifest as failing to deliver a project on the agreed-upon deadline, failing to pay for services rendered, or delivering work that does not meet the technical specifications outlined in the agreement. It is a strict matter of failing to do what was promised. This is distinct from Option D ("a failure to exercise due care"), which describes the legal concept of negligence under tort law. A professional can be sued for breach of contract if they don't deliver what they promised, or sued for negligence (tort) if they perform their duties carelessly and cause harm, even if a formal contract didn't exist.
