Cloudera CDP Data Engineer - Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q39-Q44):

NEW QUESTION # 39

What command and parameters should be used to update an existing Spark job in the Cloudera Data Engineering (CDE) service to increase its executor memory using the CDE CLI?

- A. `cde job config -name my-spark-job -set spark.executor.memory=6g`
- B. `cde job run -edit my-spark-job -conf spark.executor.memory=6g`
- C. `cde spark submit -update -name my-spark-job -executor-memory 6G`
- D. `cde job update -name my-spark-job --conf spark.executor.memory=6g`

Answer: D

Explanation:

To update an existing Spark job in the Cloudera Data Engineering (CDE) service to increase its executor memory, the correct command is `cde job update` followed by the `--name` parameter to specify the job and the `--conf` flag to set the new configuration for `spark.executor.memory`. This command allows you to modify the job's configuration parameters directly via the CDE CLI, enabling adjustments to resource allocations such as executor memory.

NEW QUESTION # 40

How does the Cloudera Optimization Framework leverage columnar storage formats for query performance improvement?

- A. By allowing more efficient data scans and operations on compressed data
- B. By encrypting data stored in columnar formats
- C. By reducing network traffic through columnar data replication
- D. By enabling more efficient compression and encoding schemes

Answer: A

Explanation:

Columnar storage formats allow for more efficient data scans and operations, especially for queries that access a subset of columns in a large dataset. This efficiency comes from the ability to read, compress, and process only the necessary columns for a query, significantly reducing I/O and CPU usage compared to row-based storage.

NEW QUESTION # 41

How can you leverage the Cloudera Data Engineering service to monitor the performance and health of your data pipelines?

- A. Manually review log files generated by individual pipeline steps.
- B. Integrate the service with a separate external monitoring tool.
- C. Utilize custom scripting to collect and analyze pipeline metrics.
- D. Utilize the built-in monitoring capabilities of the Cloudera Data Engineering service, including dashboards and alerts.

Answer: D

Explanation:

While options a and b might seem feasible, they lack efficiency and fault tolerance for complex pipelines. Option c is the most suitable approach. Here's why:
Stages and steps: Breaking down the pipeline into stages and steps allows for modularity and easier management.
Spark operators: Utilizing Spark operators within the pipeline definition enables efficient data processing using Spark's capabilities.
Retries and error handling: Implementing retries and error handling mechanisms ensures the pipeline can recover from failures and continue execution automatically.

NEW QUESTION # 42

How does the Cloudera Data Engineering service integrate with cloud storage solutions like Amazon S3 or Azure Blob Storage?

- A. Not directly supported, requires external tools.
- B. Utilizes built-in connectors for seamless access.
- C. Requires custom scripting for each cloud storage provider.
- D. Requires manual configuration for each storage bucket.

Answer: B

Explanation:

The Cloudera Data Engineering service comes with pre-built connectors for various cloud storage solutions like Amazon S3 and Azure Blob Storage. These connectors simplify data movement and integration between the platform and cloud storage solutions.

NEW QUESTION # 43

Why is it recommended to use the DataFrame API over RDDs for most data processing tasks in Spark?

- A. DataFrames automatically optimize queries using the Catalyst optimizer and Tungsten execution engine.
- B. DataFrames provide more fine-grained control over partitioning and parallelism.
- C. DataFrames require less memory and compute resources compared to RDDs.
- D. RDDs are deprecated and will be removed in future versions of Spark.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The recommendation to use DataFrames (or Datasets) over RDDs is primarily due to the performance optimization benefits offered by the Catalyst optimizer and Tungsten execution engine. These components automatically optimize Spark SQL queries, improving execution efficiency and performance. DataFrames provide a higher-level abstraction with optimized storage and execution plans, which RDDs lack. Option A is incorrect as DataFrames and RDDs offer different levels of control over partitioning and parallelism. Option C is misleading; RDDs are not deprecated and continue to be a core feature of Spark for scenarios requiring fine-grained control over distributed computing. Option D oversimplifies the comparison; while DataFrames can be more efficient due to optimization, the primary advantage is not just reduced resource usage but also the automatic query optimization.
