Fortinet FCSS - FortiSASE 24 Administrator Sample Questions (Q35-Q40):

NEW QUESTION # 35

Which two deployment methods are used to connect a FortiExtender as a FortiSASE LAN extension? (Choose two.)

- A. Configure an IPsec tunnel on FortiSASE to connect to FortiExtender.
- B. Enable Control and Provisioning Wireless Access Points (CAPWAP) access on the FortiSASE portal.
- C. Enter the FortiSASE domain name in the FortiExtender GUI as a static discovery server
- D. Connect FortiExtender to FortiSASE using FortiZTP

Answer: C,D

Explanation:

There are two deployment methods used to connect a FortiExtender as a FortiSASE LAN extension:

Connect FortiExtender to FortiSASE using FortiZTP:

FortiZero Touch Provisioning (FortiZTP) simplifies the deployment process by allowing FortiExtender to automatically connect and configure itself with FortiSASE.

This method requires minimal manual configuration, making it efficient for large-scale deployments.

Enter the FortiSASE domain name in the FortiExtender GUI as a static discovery server:

Manually configuring the FortiSASE domain name in the FortiExtender GUI allows the extender to discover and connect to the FortiSASE infrastructure.

This static discovery method ensures that FortiExtender can establish a connection with FortiSASE using the provided domain name.

NEW QUESTION # 36

A customer needs to implement device posture checks for their remote endpoints while accessing the protected server. They also want the TCP traffic between the remote endpoints and the protected servers to be processed by FortiGate.

In this scenario, which three setups will achieve the above requirements? (Choose three.)

- A. Configure FortiGate as a zero trust network access (ZTNA) access proxy.
- B. Configure private access policies on FortiSASE with ZTNA.
- C. Sync ZTNA tags from FortiSASE to FortiGate.
- D. Configure ZTNA servers and ZTNA policies on FortiGate.
- E. Configure ZTNA tags on FortiGate.

Answer: A,D,E

Explanation:

To meet the requirements of implementing device posture checks for remote endpoints and ensuring that TCP traffic between the endpoints and protected servers is processed by FortiGate, the following three setups are necessary:

Configure ZTNA tags on FortiGate (Option A):

ZTNA (Zero Trust Network Access) tags are used to define access control policies based on the security posture of devices. By configuring ZTNA tags on FortiGate, administrators can enforce granular access controls, ensuring that only compliant devices can access protected resources.

Configure FortiGate as a zero trust network access (ZTNA) access proxy (Option B):

FortiGate can act as a ZTNA access proxy, which allows it to mediate and secure connections between remote endpoints and protected servers. This setup ensures that all TCP traffic passes through FortiGate, enabling inspection and enforcement of security policies.

Configure ZTNA servers and ZTNA policies on FortiGate (Option C):

To enable ZTNA functionality, administrators must define ZTNA servers (the protected resources) and create ZTNA policies on FortiGate. These policies determine how traffic is routed, inspected, and controlled based on device posture and user identity.

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

D. Configure private access policies on FortiSASE with ZTNA: While FortiSASE supports ZTNA, the requirement specifies that TCP traffic must be processed by FortiGate. Configuring private access policies on FortiSASE would route traffic through FortiSASE instead of FortiGate, which does not meet the stated requirements.

E. Sync ZTNA tags from FortiSASE to FortiGate: Synchronizing ZTNA tags is unnecessary in this scenario because the focus is on FortiGate processing the traffic. The tags can be directly configured on FortiGate without involving FortiSASE.
