NEW QUESTION # 246

A network engineer at Cisco.com has 30 video endpoints registered to Cisco UCM 12.5.x. Which type of pattern must the engineer create to allow the video endpoints to dial meet.cisco.com?

- A. Translation pattern with the pattern: meet.cisco.com, choose the correct partition and route list.
- B. Route pattern with the pattern: meet.cisco.com, choose the correct partition and route list.
- C. Route group with the pattern: meet.cisco.com, choose the correct partition and route list.
- D. SIP route pattern with the pattern: meet.cisco.com, and choose the correct partition and route list.

Answer: D

Explanation:

To enable video endpoints registered to Cisco Unified Communications Manager (CUCM) to dial an external SIP address like meet.cisco.com, a SIP Route Pattern must be created. This pattern specifies how CUCM should handle SIP URI-based dialing. SIP Route Pattern:

- SIP route patterns allow CUCM to match and route SIP URIs to specific destinations, such as external SIP domains or services.
- In this case, the pattern meet.cisco.com matches any call attempting to dial this URI and routes it appropriately.

Partition and Route List:

- The partition organizes route patterns and ensures proper call routing.
- The route list directs the call to the correct trunk or gateway (e.g., an Expressway-C/E or a SIP trunk to Cisco Webex).

Why meet.cisco.com?

- This pattern ensures that calls to this external domain are handled as SIP-based calls and routed via the configured route list.
