Cloud Security Alliance Certificate of Cloud Security Knowledge v5 (CCSKv5.0) Sample Questions (Q68-Q73):

NEW QUESTION # 68

How does serverless computing impact infrastructure management responsibility?

- A. Eliminates need for cloud service providers
- B. Increases workload for developers
- C. Requires extensive on-premises infrastructure
- D. Shifts more responsibility to cloud service providers

Answer: D

Explanation:

Serverless computing shifts infrastructure management responsibility to the CSP, allowing customers to focus on application logic rather than infrastructure. Reference: [Security Guidance v5, Domain 8 - Cloud Workload Security]

NEW QUESTION # 69

Which approach is essential in identifying compromised identities in cloud environments where attackers utilize automated methods?

- A. Deploying behavioral detectors for IAM and management plane activities
- B. Implementing full packet capture and monitoring
- C. Focusing exclusively on signature-based detection for known malware
- D. Relying on IP address and connection header monitoring

Answer: A

Explanation:

Behavioral detection for IAM and management plane activities is essential for identifying unusual or suspicious actions by compromised identities, especially in environments where attackers use automated tactics. Reference: [CCSK v5 Curriculum, Domain 5 - IAM]

NEW QUESTION # 70

After an incident has been identified and classified, which activity is typically performed during the Containment, Eradication, and Recovery phase of incident response?

- A. Monitoring network traffic for anomalies
- B. Restoring systems to operational status while preventing recurrence
- C. Documenting lessons learned and finalizing reports
- D. Identifying and classifying security threats

Answer: B

Explanation:

According to the CSA Security Guidance v4.0, Domain 9: Incident Response, the Containment, Eradication, and Recovery phase follows detection and analysis. This phase focuses on limiting the damage, removing the threat, and restoring systems to a secure operational state.

"After detection and analysis, containment, eradication, and recovery are necessary to prevent further damage and restore systems."

"Recovery is the process of restoring affected systems and services to a fully operational state in a controlled and safe manner." This includes activities such as:

Removing malware or compromised systems

Rebuilding or restoring from backups

Applying patches

Validating that vulnerabilities are fixed

Monitoring for any recurrence

Incorrect options:

A refers to the Post-Incident Activity phase.

C is part of Detection and Analysis.

D is also part of the initial phase of the incident response cycle.

Reference:

CSA Security Guidance v4.0 - Domain 9: Incident Response (Section: Containment, Eradication, and Recovery)

NEW QUESTION # 71

According to ENISA(European Network and Information Security Agency) document on Security risk and recommendation. Isolation Failure is:

- A. Management Risk
- B. Organizational Risk
- C. Technical Risk
- D. Compliance Risk

Answer: C

Explanation:

Isolation failure is defined as:

Multi-tenancy and shared resources are two of the defining characteristics of cloud computing environments. Computing capacity, storage, and network are shared between multiple users. This class of risks includes the failure of mechanisms separating storage, memory, routing, and even reputation between different tenants of the shared infrastructure(e.g. so-called guest-hopping attacks, SQL injection attacks exposing multiple customers' data stored in the same table, and side channel attacks).

NEW QUESTION # 72

In federated identity management, what role does the identity provider (IdP) play in relation to the relying party?

- A. The relying party makes assertions to the IdP about user authorizations.
- B. The IdP and relying party have no direct trust relationship.
- C. The IdP relies on the relying party to authenticate and authorize users.
- D. The IdP makes assertions to the relying party after building a trust relationship.

Answer: D

Explanation:

In federated identity management, the identity provider (IdP) is responsible for authenticating users and making assertions about their identity to the relying party (which could be a service or application that trusts the IdP). The IdP and the relying party establish a trust relationship in advance, which allows the IdP to assert that a user is authenticated, often in the form of security tokens or assertions like SAML or OpenID Connect.

The IdP that authenticates users and makes assertions, not the relying party. The relying party does not make assertions to the IdP; the relying party relies on assertions made by the IdP. The IdP and relying party do have a direct trust relationship in federated identity management.
