NEW QUESTION # 96

Prompt Lab in IBM Watsonx Generative AI offers several advantages for AI prompt engineering. Which of the following best describes a primary benefit of using the Prompt Lab feature?

- A. It guarantees that all generated responses adhere to industry-specific regulatory standards.
- B. It enables users to test different versions of prompts and receive immediate feedback on their effectiveness.
- C. It provides a collaborative environment where multiple users can co-author prompts in real time.
- D. It allows users to design custom AI models from scratch to handle specific tasks.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 97

You are tasked with designing a generative AI model to assist users in filling out a form that collects personal information, such as email addresses and phone numbers.

What is the most appropriate method to ensure the model can differentiate between required personal information and unnecessary sensitive data that should not be included in the output?

- A. Leverage regular expressions to filter out personal information in the prompt
- B. Use a post-generation filter to remove any text that appears to be personal information
- C. Train the model exclusively on datasets that contain no personal information
- D. Embed privacy-sensitive heuristics in the model's prompt to guide its behavior

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 98

After prompt-tuning a language model, you notice that certain outputs are semantically correct but syntactically flawed.

Which of the following actions is most appropriate to resolve this issue and optimize the tuned model's performance?

- A. Lower the learning rate during the tuning phase
- B. Use a higher temperature during the generation process
- C. Increase the model's training dataset size
- D. Fine-tune the prompt template to emphasize grammar

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 99

While working with IBM Watsonx to generate synthetic data, you import a sensitive dataset containing personally identifiable information (PII). You are tasked with anonymizing the imported data before proceeding with any fine-tuning or data augmentation.

Which of the following steps is the most appropriate to ensure proper anonymization?

- A. Apply a differential privacy algorithm that ensures no individual data point can be traced back to a specific user.
- B. Use a hashing algorithm to replace PII fields while retaining the ability to reverse the process if needed.
- C. Generate a synthetic version of the dataset that removes all PII automatically.
- D. Randomly shuffle the sensitive data fields to prevent direct re-identification.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 100

You are working on a project where the AI model needs to generate personalized customer support responses based on various input fields like customer name, issue type, and product details. To make the system scalable and flexible, you decide to use prompt variables in your implementation.

Which of the following statements accurately describe the benefits of using prompt variables in this scenario? (Select two)

- A. Prompt variables reduce redundancy by allowing dynamic inputs to be injected into a single prompt template, improving scalability.
- B. Prompt variables improve the model's performance by optimizing its internal architecture, reducing computation time for each request.
- C. Using prompt variables allows the model to dynamically adjust its output based on context, without requiring multiple task-specific prompts.
- D. Prompt variables eliminate the need for fine-tuning the model on specific tasks since they allow on-the-fly customization of responses.
- E. Prompt variables require a complete re-training of the model whenever a new variable is introduced, which can be time-consuming.

Answer: A,C
