SAP Certified Associate - Security Administrator Sample Questions (Q11-Q16):

NEW QUESTION # 11

Which levels of security protection are provided by Secure Network Communication (SNC)? Note: There are 3 correct answers to this question.

- A. Availability
- B. Privacy
- C. Integrity
- D. Authorization
- E. Authentication

Answer: B,C,E

Explanation:

Secure Network Communication (SNC) in SAP systems provides three key levels of security protection: Authentication, Privacy, and Integrity. Authentication ensures that the communicating parties, such as users or systems, are verified as legitimate, preventing unauthorized access. Privacy protects data during transmission by encrypting it, safeguarding sensitive information from interception or eavesdropping.

Integrity ensures that data is not altered or tampered with during transmission, guaranteeing that the received data matches the sent data. These protections are critical for secure communication in SAP environments, particularly for external interfaces or remote connections. Availability, while important, is not a direct function of SNC, as it relates to system uptime rather than communication security. Authorization, which controls access rights, is managed by SAP's authorization framework, not SNC. By implementing SNC, SAP systems achieve a robust security posture for network communications, ensuring trust and data protection across distributed landscapes.

Which log types are available in the Administration Console of Cloud Identity Services? Note: There are 2 correct answers to this question.

- A. Troubleshooting logs
- B. Change logs
- C. Usage logs
- D. Performance logs

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

In the Administration Console of SAP Cloud Identity Services, the available log types are Troubleshooting logs and Change logs.

Troubleshooting logs provide detailed information about system errors, authentication failures, or integration issues, enabling administrators to diagnose and resolve technical problems efficiently.

Change logs record modifications to user identities, system configurations, or security settings, offering an audit trail for tracking administrative actions and ensuring compliance with security policies. These logs are critical for maintaining system integrity and supporting forensic analysis in identity management. Usage logs, which might track user activity, and Performance logs, which monitor system performance metrics, are not standard log types in the Cloud Identity Services Administration Console, as its focus is on identity-related diagnostics and auditing. By providing Troubleshooting and Change logs, SAP Cloud Identity Services ensures administrators have the tools needed to monitor and secure identity management processes effectively, aligning with best practices for cloud-based security governance.
