SAP Certified Technology Consultant - SAP S/4HANA System Administration Sample Questions (Q60-Q65):

NEW QUESTION # 60

How are savepoints triggered?

Note: There are 2 correct answers to this question

- A. By a database soft shutdown
- B. By performing a delta merge
- C. By performing a database backup
- D. By issuing a transactional commit

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

In SAP S/4HANA, savepoints are critical to database consistency and recovery mechanisms. A savepoint is a point in time at which the database can be consistently restored. The triggering of savepoints is an automatic process managed by the database, ensuring that data changes are synchronized and durable.

* A. By performing a database backup: When a database backup is initiated, a savepoint is automatically created to ensure that the backup reflects a consistent state of the database. This savepoint allows for the recovery of the database to the exact state it was in at the time of the backup.

* B. By a database soft shutdown: During a soft shutdown of the database, a savepoint is triggered to ensure that all in-memory changes are flushed to disk and that the database is in a consistent state before the shutdown completes. This process ensures that the database can be restarted without data loss or corruption.

Savepoints play a crucial role in the database's ability to recover from failures and maintain data integrity. By automatically creating savepoints at key operations like backups and shutdowns, the database ensures that it can always be restored to a consistent state.

NEW QUESTION # 61

You are using a standard three system landscape, DEV, QAS, and PRD. When will a change of a repository object in the QAS system be treated as correction?

- A. If the object's name is in the SAP name range.
- B. If the object was created in DEV and transported to QAS via a transport of copies.
- C. If the object was created in DEV and transported to QAS via a workbench request.
- D. If the original system of the object is QAS.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 62

- A. Using transaction /WFND/MAINT_SERVICE.
- B. Using transaction /WFND/GW_CLIENT.
- C. Using task list SAP_GATEWAY_BASIC_CONFIG.
- D. Using task list SAP_GATEWAY_ACTIVATE_ODATA_SERV.

Answer: A,D

NEW QUESTION # 63

You are running an SAP HANA database in log mode "normal"

Under what circumstances does the database automatically execute a regular log backup?

Note: There are 2 correct answers to this question.

- A. When a commit occurs
- B. When the time threshold is exceeded
- C. When the log segment is full
- D. When the log buffer is full

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

In an SAP HANA database running in log mode "normal," regular log backups are automatically executed under specific circumstances. One such circumstance is when the log segment is full (D), necessitating a backup to free up space for new log entries. Additionally, a regular log backup is triggered when a predefined time threshold is exceeded (C), ensuring that log backups occur at regular intervals even if the log segment isn't full. This mechanism helps in maintaining a balance between performance and data safety, ensuring that log data is preserved for database recovery without overwhelming the system's storage with frequent backups.

NEW QUESTION # 64

Which tasks can you perform when using the SAP HANA database lifecycle manager (HDBLCM) from the SAP HANA installation media? Note: There are 2 correct answers to this question.
