Snowflake SnowPro Advanced: Data Analyst Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q82-Q87):

NEW QUESTION # 82

How does leveraging clones aid in handling specific use-cases and maintaining data integrity in Snowflake?

- A. Clones allow isolated testing and analysis without impacting original data
- B. Clones restrict data access for specific user roles
- C. Clones enforce data consistency across multiple warehouses
- D. Clones facilitate real-time data updates

Answer: A

Explanation:

Clones in Snowflake enable isolated testing and analysis without affecting original data, supporting specific use-cases while maintaining data integrity by providing a separate environment for manipulation.

NEW QUESTION # 83

In what ways do stored procedures differ from user-defined functions (UDFs) in SQL?

- A. UDFs allow custom-defined operations on data, extending SQL functionalities.
- B. Stored procedures and UDFs are interchangeable in SQL.
- C. Stored procedures only handle basic arithmetic operations.
- D. Stored procedures can't execute repetitive tasks like UDFs.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Stored procedures and UDFs differ in their ability to execute repetitive tasks.

NEW QUESTION # 84

You are working with a Snowflake table called containing sales transactions. The table includes columns like 'transaction_id' (VARCHAR), 'product_id' (VARCHAR), 'transaction_date' (DATE), (NUMBER(10,2)), and (GEOGRAPHY). You need to perform the following data preparation tasks: 1. Clean the data: Remove transactions with less than or equal to 0. 2. Transform the data: Convert the 'customer_location' from GEOGRAPHY to a WKT string representation. 3. Enrich the data: Calculate the year and month from the 'transaction_date' and add them as new columns. 4. Mask the data: Partially mask the 'transaction_id' column to protect customer data by only displaying the last 4 digits of the ID. Considering performance and best practices, what is the MOST efficient way to achieve these transformations using Snowflake features? You need to achieve this in a single statement.

- A. ☐
- B. ☐
- C. ☐
- D. ☐
- E. ☐

Answer: C,D

Explanation:

Options A and D are functionally equivalent and correct, they both performs the desired data cleansing, transformation, and enrichment in a single 'CREATE OR REPLACE TABLE' statement. The 'WHERE sales_amount >' clause filters out invalid transactions. RIGHT(transaction_id, 4) masks the transaction ID. YEAR() and MONTH() extract the year and month from the date, and ST_ASTEXT() converts the GEOGRAPHY object to a WKT string. Option B uses HASH, but the question asks for partially masking so HASH isn't suitable. Option C uses CASE, that is not required. Option E makes use of SYSTEM$MASK, function which masks the entire column value, that isn't what the questions asks.

NEW QUESTION # 85

You observe a 'Spilling to Local Storage' event in the Query Profile of a complex aggregation query. This indicates that the intermediate results are exceeding the memory capacity of the virtual warehouse. Which of the following actions would be MOST effective in mitigating this issue and improving the query performance?

- A. Reduce the number of distinct values in the grouping columns.
- B. Optimize the query to reduce the amount of data processed before the aggregation.
- C. Increase the virtual warehouse size to provide more memory resources.
- D. Increase the value of the 'MAX MEMORY USAGE' parameter for the session.
- E. Implement result caching to avoid re-computation.

Answer: A,B,C

Explanation:

Spilling to local storage indicates memory pressure. Increasing the virtual warehouse size provides more memory. Reducing the number of distinct values in grouping columns reduces the size of intermediate aggregation results. Optimizing the query to reduce data volume before aggregation also reduces memory footprint. ' ' is not a user-configurable parameter in Snowflake. Result caching won't help with the memory issue during the initial execution.

NEW QUESTION # 86

In what way can regular views be advantageous in data analysis?

- A. They restrict data access, improving security but hindering analysis.
- B. Regular views can only be utilized in combination with UDFs.
- C. Regular views simplify complex data structures for ease of analysis.
- D. Regular views don't impact query performance significantly.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Regular views simplify complex data structures, aiding ease of analysis by providing a streamlined representation of data.
