Network Appliance Implementation Engineer - Data Protection Exam Sample Questions (Q40-Q45):

NEW QUESTION # 40

An administrator has SnapMirror active sync configured to protect Oracle databases between data centers. The configuration has multiple databases stored on each LUN. A database administrator (DBA) asks the administrator to restore a single database on the source cluster.

Which two parameters must be provided by the DBA? (Choose two.)

- A. byte-range lock
- B. ending byte offset
- C. starting byte offset
- D. byte count

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

When multiple databases are stored on the same LUN and a single database needs to be restored using SnapMirror active sync, the restore process must target the specific byte range corresponding to that database. This requires the starting byte offset and the ending byte offset.

These define the exact data region on the LUN to be restored without affecting the other databases.
