Much of the internal auditor's work involves accumulation of engagement information. A duplicate of a contract rather than the original is an example of what kind of evidence?

- A. Circumstantial.
- B. Secondary.
- C. Hearsay.
- D. Opinion.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Secondary evidence according to the legal view is acceptable if primary evidence the strongest evidence, e.g., original documents) has been destroyed or is not reasonably procurable. Secondary evidence must be a proper representation of primary evidence, e.g., copies of a contract.

NEW QUESTION # 157

RLF Corporation had profit before taxes of US $60,000 for the year. Included in this amount were depreciation of US $5,000, a charge of US $6,000 for the amortization of bond discounts, and US $4,000 for interest expense. The estimated cash flow for the period is:

- A. US $49,000
- B. US $66,000
- C. US $60,000
- D. US $71,000

Answer: D

Explanation:

To determine cash flow for the period, all noncash expenses should be added back to profit. Adding the US $5,000 of depreciation and the US $6,000 of discount amortization to the US $60,000 of profit produces a cash flow of US $71,000.

NEW QUESTION # 158

Quality costing is similar in service and manufacturing organizations. Nevertheless, the differences between these organizations have certain implications for quality management.

Thus,

- A. Quality improvements resulting in more efficient use of labor time are more likely to be accepted by employees in service organizations.
- B. Direct labor costs are usually a higher percentage of total costs in manufacturing organizations.
- C. Poor service is less likely to result in loss of customers than a faulty product.
- D. External failure costs are relatively greater in service organizations.

Answer: D

Explanation:

External failure costs arise when problems occur after delivery. They occur because products or services are nonconforming or otherwise do not satisfy customers. External failure costs in service enterprises are even more important than in manufacturing environments. Faulty goods sometimes may be reworked or replaced to a customer's satisfaction, but poor service tends to result in a loss of customers.

NEW QUESTION # 159

Which of the following inventory items would be the most frequently reviewed in an ABC inventory control system?

- A. Inexpensive, frequently used, high stock-out cost items with long lead times.
- B. Expensive, frequently used, high stock-out cost items with short lead times.
- C. Expensive, frequently used, low stock-out cost items with long lead times.
- D. Expensive, frequently used, high stock-out cost items with long lead times.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The ABC system is a method for controlling inventories that divides inventory items into three groups: Group A -- high-monetary value items, which account for a small portion perhaps 10%) of the total inventory usage Group B -- medium-monetary value items, which may account for about 20% of the total inventory items

Group C -- low-monetary value items, which account for the remaining 70% of sales or usage The ABC system permits the proper degree of managerial control to be identified and exercised over each group. Group A items are reviewed on a regular basis. Group B items may not have to be reviewed as often as group A items, but more often than group C items. For group C, extensive use of models and records is not cost effective. It is cheaper to order large quantities infrequently. The ABC method therefore reduces the safety-stock investment because high-value items are frequently monitored and medium-value items are monitored more often than inexpensive items. Frequent review can prevent stockouts and decrease inventory levels, and the cost of such review is minimized if it is limited to high- or medium-value items.
