- A. A fixed standard
- B. The performance of a specific group
- C. The test content

Answer: B

Explanation:

Norm-referenced tests compare an individual's performance to that of a normative group, allowing counselors to interpret scores relative to peers rather than an absolute criterion.

NEW QUESTION # 35

What credential regulates the practice of professional counseling?

- A. licensure
- B. graduation
- C. accreditation

Answer: A

Explanation:

Licensure is the credential that regulates the practice of professional counseling. State boards grant licensure to ensure that only qualified individuals may practice as professional counselors. Accreditation refers to programs or institutions, and graduation simply means completing a degree program. Only licensure grants the legal right to practice independently.

NEW QUESTION # 36

When counselors are reluctant to tell clients bad news even though disclosing the information is in the client's best interest, the counselors are exhibiting what is known as the

- A. mum effect.
- B. displacement defense.
- C. passive-aggressive response.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The mum effect refers to the tendency to withhold or soften the delivery of unpleasant or bad news. In counseling, this can occur when a counselor avoids giving clients information that is necessary but potentially upsetting, even though disclosure would be in the client's best interest.

NEW QUESTION # 37

Which of the following is a true experimental design?

- A. single-subject
- B. quasi-experimental
- C. randomly assigned between-groups

Answer: C

Explanation:

A true experimental design is characterized by random assignment of participants to groups and the manipulation of an independent variable. Randomly assigned between-groups designs meet these criteria.

Quasi-experimental designs lack random assignment, and single-subject designs focus on individuals rather than groups. "True experimental designs require random assignment and control over variables." Reference: Helwig, A. A. (2020). CPCE Study Guide and Review.

The major drawback to using the Solomon four-group design is that it

- B. costs a great deal in terms of time, energy, and resources.
- C. tends to produce conflicting results.

The Solomon four-group design is valuable for controlling threats to validity but is resource intensive. It requires more participants, more time, and more resources than simpler designs, making it less practical for many researchers.
