Huawei HCIE-Datacom V1.0 Sample Questions (Q89-Q94):

NEW QUESTION # 89

When there are multiple rule rules for ACLs in VRRP, which of the following statements is true regarding the order of matching? (Single choice questions).

- A. By default, matching is made from smallest to largest according to the Rule-ID.
- B. There is only one matching order and cannot be modified.
- C. By default, matching occurs in the order in which the permit is matched first and deny later.
- D. By default, matching is based on the principle of "depth first"

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 90

In OSPFv3, which of the following LSAs can be flooded within an area?

- A. Link-LSA

- B. Inter-Area-Router-LSA
- C. Intra-Area-Prefix-LSA
- D. Inter-Area-Prefix-LSA

Answer: C

Explanation:

Intra-Area-Prefix-LSA (Type 9) is used in OSPFv3 to carry IPv6 prefix information for a router or network and is flooded within the area.

Link-LSA (Type 8) is only sent on the local link and is not flooded throughout the area.

Inter-Area-Prefix-LSA (Type 3) and Inter-Area-Router-LSA (Type 4) are also flooded within an area but originate from ABRs, typically for cross-area route advertisement.

That said, Intra-Area-Prefix-LSA is specifically flooded within an area, matching the context of the question directly.

Exact Extract - Huawei HCIE-Datacom OSPFv3 Module:

"Intra-Area-Prefix-LSAs are flooded within the area and advertise the IPv6 prefixes associated with router and network LSAs."

NEW QUESTION # 91

NETCONF provides a set of mechanisms for managing network devices. What layers can NETCONF be conceptually partitioned into?

- A. Encrypted transport layer, messages layer, configuration layer, and content layer
- B. Encrypted transport layer, messages layer, operations layer, and content layer
- C. Secure transport layer, messages layer, operations layer, and content layer
- D. Secure transport layer, messages layer, configuration layer, and content layer

Answer: C

Explanation:

NETCONF architecture consists of the following conceptual layers:

Secure Transport Layer - Ensures confidentiality (e.g., SSH, TLS)

Messages Layer - Handles framing and encoding (XML-based)

Operations Layer - Includes < get > , < edit-config > , < commit > , etc.

Content Layer - Carries the actual configuration and state data defined by YANG models This makes Option D correct.

Exact Extract - Huawei HCIE-Datacom NETCONF Architecture Overview:

"NETCONF is divided into four conceptual layers: secure transport, message framing, operations, and content layers." Reference:

NEW QUESTION # 92

What is the router ID length supported by OSPFv3?

- A. 64 bits
- B. 128 bits
- C. 32 bits
- D. 100 bits

Answer: C

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth

OSPFv3, which supports IPv6, uses a router ID that is 32 bits in length, similar to OSPFv2. The router ID in OSPF is always a 32-bit number, typically represented in an IPv4 address format (dotted decimal). Although OSPFv3 is designed to support IPv6, it still relies on a 32-bit router ID for identification, which must be unique within an OSPF domain. The router ID does not change even though the protocol itself supports IPv6 addresses (128 bits).
