- A. management console and the cloud
- B. SDN controller and the management solution
- C. SDN controller and the cloud
- D. management console and the SDN controller

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 300

Which Cisco ISE service checks the compliance of endpoints before allowing the endpoints to connect to the network?

- A. profiler
- B. posture
- C. Threat Centric NAC
- D. Cisco TrustSec

Answer: B

Explanation:

Posture is a service in Cisco ISE that allows you to check the compliance, also known as posture, of endpoints, before allowing them to connect to your network. A posture agent, such as the AnyConnect ISE Posture Agent or Network Admission Control (NAC) Agent, runs on the endpoint and collects information about the endpoint's security posture, such as antivirus, antispyware, firewall, and patch status. The posture agent then communicates with the ISE server, which evaluates the posture information against the posture policy and determines the compliance state of the endpoint. Based on the compliance state, the ISE server can grant or deny network access to the endpoint, or apply remediation actions to bring the endpoint into compliance.

Posture service is part of the ISE solution for network access control (NAC), which aims to secure the network from unauthorized or compromised endpoints. References:

NEW QUESTION # 301

What are two ways a network administrator transparently identifies users using Active Directory on the Cisco WSA? (Choose two.) The eDirectory client must be installed on each client workstation.

- A. Deploy a separate Active Directory agent such as Cisco Context Directory Agent.
- B. Deploy a separate eDirectory server; the client IP address is recorded in this server.
- C. Create an LDAP authentication realm and disable transparent user identification.
- D. Create NTLM or Kerberos authentication realm and enable transparent user identification

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

Transparently identify users with authentication realms - This option is available when one or more authentication realms are configured to support transparent identification using one of the following authentication servers:

Active Directory - Create an NTLM or Kerberos authentication realm and enable transparent user identification. In addition, you must deploy a separate Active Directory agent such as Cisco's Context Directory Agent. For more information, see Transparent User Identification with Active Directory.

LDAP - Create an LDAP authentication realm configured as an eDirectory, and enable transparent user identification. For more information, see Transparent User Identification with LDAP.

NEW QUESTION # 302

Which feature within Cisco Umbrella allows for the ability to inspect secure HTTP traffic?

- A. Destination Lists
- B. SSL Decryption
- C. SafeSearch
- D. File Analysis

Answer: B

Explanation:

SSL Decryption is an important part of the Umbrella Intelligent Proxy. The feature allows the Intelligent Proxy to go beyond simply inspecting normal URLs and actually proxy and inspect traffic that's sent over HTTPS. The SSL Decryption feature does require the root certificate be installed.
