- A. sfdc_checkout.ShippingCharges
- B. sfdc_checkout.CartShippingCharges
- C. sfdc_commerce ShippingCharges
- D. sfdc_commerce.CartShippingCharges

Answer: B

Explanation:
To override shipping charges during the checkout process, the developer needs to implement a specific interface, likely sfdc_checkout.CartShippingCharges. This interface would allow for custom logic to calculate and apply shipping charges based on the cart's contents and other criteria, ensuring flexibility and accuracy in handling shipping costs within the checkout flow.

NEW QUESTION # 195
Which format is the custom Salesforce relationship with the API name,
"My_Relationship_Name__r.My_Name__c" queried and transformed into dy default in Salesforce B2B Commerce?

- A. My_Relationship_Name__r.My_Name__c: value
- B. myrelationshipname.myname: value
- C. myRelationshipNameR=>(myName: value)
- D. myRelationshipName.myName: value

Answer: C

Explanation:
The format that the custom Salesforce relationship with the API name, My_Relationship_Name__r.My_Name__c is queried and transformed into by default in Salesforce B2B Commerce is myRelationshipName.myName: value. This is done to follow the JavaScript naming convention and to avoid conflicts with the standard Salesforce fields and relationships. The transformation rules are as follows:
Remove any namespace prefix from the field name, such as ccrz__ or cloudcraze__.
Remove any underscores from the field name and capitalize the first letter of each word after an underscore, such as MyRelationshipName and MyName.
Lowercase the first letter of the field name, such as myRelationshipName and myName.
Use a dot (.) to separate the relationship name and the field name, such as myRelationshipName.myName.
Use a colon (:) to separate the field name and the field value, such as myRelationshipName.myName: value. Salesforce B2B Commerce and D2C Commerce Developer Guide,Query Transformation

A developer needs to bulk export all of the Product data from an org and does not have access to Data Loader or Workbench. However, the Command Line Interface (CLI) is available. Which command allows the developer to accomplish this task?

- A. sfdx force:data:tree:export -o Product?

NEW QUESTION # 197
A developer needs to deliver a solution for taxation that supports multiple countries and a complex set of jurisdictions. Which three steps should be considered as part of this process?

- A. Implement the sfdc_checkout.CartTaxCalculations interface writing code from scratch
- B. Implement the sfdc_checkout.TaxCalculations interface calling out to a third party tax service
- C. Implement the sfdc_checkout.CartTaxCalculations interface calling out to a third party tax service
- D. Contact the vendor who wrote the third party service for the most recent information
- E. Look for packages or existing sample code on the AppExchange

Answer: B,C,E

Explanation:
For a solution that requires handling complex tax calculations across multiple countries and jurisdictions, it's efficient to leverage third-party tax services that specialize in this area. Implementing the sfdc_checkout.CartTaxCalculations or sfdc_checkout.TaxCalculations interface to integrate with such a service ensures that tax calculations are accurate and up-to-date.

Additionally, exploring the Salesforce AppExchange for packages or sample code can provide ready-made solutions or frameworks that can expedite the development process.

NEW QUESTION # 198
How can a developer introduce new screen behavior in a checkout flow step?

- A. Edit the default subflow directly
- B. Modify the property mappings in checkoutSteps.xml
- C. Adjust next-state in previous subflow configuration
- D. Clone the appropriate subflow and replace the Lightning web components in it

Answer: C

Explanation:
To introduce new screen behavior in a checkout flow step, a developer should clone the appropriate subflow and replace the Lightning web components in it. A subflow is a reusable flow that can be invoked from another flow as an element. A checkout flow is a flow that defines the steps and components for the checkout process in the storefront. A checkout flow consists of several subflows, each of which corresponds to a checkout step, such as Cart, Shipping Address, Payment, or Order Summary. To introduce new screen behavior in a checkout flow step, a developer should clone the subflow that matches the checkout step they want to modify and replace the Lightning web components in the cloned subflow with their custom components. The developer can then update the checkoutSteps.xml file to point to the cloned subflow instead of the original subflow. Modifying the property mappings in checkoutSteps.xml is not a valid way to introduce new screen behavior in a checkout flow step, as it only affects how data is passed between subflows, not how screens are displayed or rendered. Editing the default subflow directly is not a valid way either, as it can cause conflicts or errors with other stores or environments that use the same default subflow. Adjusting next-state in previous subflow configuration is not a valid way either, as it only affects how subflows are transitioned or navigated, not how screens are displayed or rendered.
