HPE Aruba Networking Switching Associate Exam Sample Questions (Q99-Q104):

NEW QUESTION # 99

A Solutions Architect is designing a routing solution for a branch office. The office has a core switch that needs to be configured to route between the local user VLAN (VLAN 10) and a server VLAN (VLAN 20). Additionally, all traffic destined for the internet must be forwarded to a primary firewall at 10.255.255.1. For redundancy, a secondary, floating static route should be configured to forward traffic to a backup firewall at 10.255.255.5 only if the primary path fails.

Initial State:

- * The switch is in its factory default state, connected via the console.
- * VLANs 10 and 20 are already created.

Required Configuration:

- * Enable IP routing on the switch.
- * Configure an SVI for VLAN 10 with IP address 192.168.10.1/24.
- * Configure an SVI for VLAN 20 with IP address 192.168.20.1/24.
- * Configure the primary default route to 10.255.255.1.
- * Configure the backup default route to 10.255.255.5 with an administrative distance of 10.

Which configuration set correctly implements this routing design?

- A. ip routing
