NEW QUESTION # 123

When designing steps with operations requiring variables, it is best practice to do what?

- A. query targets for variables
- B. design for a static environment
- C. hard core variables
- D. always use scalar variables

Answer: A

Explanation:

When designing steps with operations requiring variables, it is best practice to query targets for variables¹.

This allows you to dynamically obtain the values of the variables from the target devices, rather than hard coding them or using scalar variables that may not reflect the current state of the target. Querying targets for variables also enables you to design for a dynamic environment, where the target configuration may change over time.
