IIC Principles and Practice of Insurance Sample Questions (Q89-Q94):

NEW QUESTION # 89

What are the four requirements of a binding contract under the Civil Code of Quebec?

- A. Acceptance, cause, consent, and subject of contract
- B. Acceptance, agreement, capacity, and offer
- C. Capacity, intention, co-operation, and lesion
- D. Capacity, cause, consent, and object of contract

Answer: D

Explanation:

Under the Civil Code of Quebec, a valid contract requires four essential elements:

Capacity- Parties must be legally capable of contracting.

Cause- The reason or purpose each party has for contracting.

Consent- Agreement must be free and informed, without error, fear, or fraud.

Object of the contract- The subject matter of the agreement must be sufficiently defined and lawful.

These elements mirror common-law principles but differ in terminology. Option D is close but inaccurate-

"acceptance" is part of consent, and "subject" is a less precise term than "object." Options A and B include incorrect or irrelevant components.

Thus, the correct answer reflecting Quebec civil law requirements is C.

NEW QUESTION # 90

What is the annual premium for a building insured for $500,000 at a rate of $0.80 per $100?

- A. $2,500
- B. $800
- C. $4,000
- D. $6,250

Answer: C

Explanation:

To calculate premiums rated per $100 of insurance, the formula is:

Premium = (Amount of Insurance ÷ 100) × Rate

Step-by-step:

$$500,000 \div 100 = 5,000$ rating units

$5,000 \times $0.80 = $4,000$

Thus, the annual premium for the building is $4,000, making Option C the correct answer.

Option A is too low, while Options B and D do not match the rating calculation. Underwriters rely on these standardized rating methods to ensure consistent and adequate premium development.

NEW QUESTION # 91

Which peril of operating a business is insurable?

- A. Cybersecurity
- B. Under-capitalization
- C. Mismanagement
- D. Product obsolescence

Answer: A

Explanation:

To be insurable, a peril must be fortuitous, measurable, and not within the direct control of the insured.

Cybersecurity risks meet these criteria, which is why insurers offer cyber liability and data breach insurance.

These policies cover hacking, ransomware, privacy breaches, and business interruption caused by cyber events.

Mismanagement (B) is uninsurable because it results from internal decision failure.

Under-capitalization (C) is a business failure, not a fortuitous peril.

Product obsolescence (D) is a predictable business cycle risk and cannot be insured.

Thus, the only insurable peril listed is A: Cybersecurity.

NEW QUESTION # 92

What should an insurer do if it wishes to have additional terms incorporated in an interim cover?

- A. Verbally declare its intent to the intermediary
- B. Rely on Statutory Conditions / General Conditions
- C. Set the terms down in writing
- D. Avoid releasing an interim cover prior to policy inception

Answer: C

Explanation:

Interim covers-also called binders or cover notes-are legal proof of temporary coverage. Because they function as contracts, any additional terms the insurer wishes to impose must be clearly written and communicated to the insured at the time coverage is bound. Courts consistently require that policy terms be in writing to be enforceable, especially when modifying or restricting standard coverage.

Option B is incorrect because verbal instructions can lead to disputes and are not enforceable under contract law or statutory requirements. Option C is incorrect because statutory conditions apply automatically but do not add insurer-specific terms. Option D is unrelated-interim covers exist precisely to provide immediate insurance before the policy is issued.

Therefore, if the insurer wants additional conditions or limitations to apply, they must be set down in writing as part of the interim contract, making A the correct answer.

NEW QUESTION # 93

What type of cancellation occurs if the insured cancels the policy before expiry?

- A. Partial-term
- B. Pro rata
- C. Half-term
- D. Short rate

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

When a policyholder (the insured) cancels a policy before its natural expiry date, insurers apply short rate cancellation. Under short rate cancellation, the insurer refunds the unearned premium minus a penalty. This penalty is applied because early cancellation disrupts expenses already incurred by the insurer, such as acquisition and administrative costs.

By contrast:

Pro rata cancellation (A) applies when the insurer cancels the policy - this provides the insured with the full unearned premium refund, without penalties.

Half-term (B) is not a recognized cancellation method.

Partial-term (D) is also not an insurance cancellation method.

Thus, when the insured initiates cancellation, the correct method applied is short rate.
