The current flowing through the conductor is directly proportional to the potential difference (V) across the two ends of a conductor, provided the physical state (Dimension, Temperature, etc.) of the conductor remains the same.

Mathematically can be written as $I \propto V$
 $I = KV$

where K is the constant of proportionality called conductance or the physical state of the conductor. Conductance is the opposite of resistance. Thus $(K = 1 / R)$.

Rearranging the equation, we get $I = \frac{V}{R}$ $V = IR$

where R is a constant called resistance. R depends on the dimensions of the conductor and also on the material of the conductor. Its S.I unit is the ohm (Ω).
