NCLEX-RN exam is a comprehensive test that covers a wide range of topics related to nursing practice. NCLEX-RN exam is designed to assess the candidate's ability to provide safe and effective care to patients across the lifespan, from newborns to elderly adults. NCLEX-RN exam consists of multiple-choice questions, as well as alternate format questions such as select-all-that-apply and fill-in-the-blank. The NCLEX-RN is a rigorous exam, and it is designed to ensure that only those who have the knowledge and skills necessary to provide safe and effective nursing care are licensed to practice as registered nurses.

Passing the NCLEX-RN Exam is a requirement for licensure as a registered nurse in the United States. NCLEX-RN exam is designed to ensure that candidates have the necessary knowledge and skills to provide safe and effective care to patients. In addition, the exam is used to establish a standard of competency for registered nurses across the country.

NCLEX National Council Licensure Examination(NCLEX-RN) Sample Questions (Q818-Q823):

NEW QUESTION # 818

The mother of a 7-year-old mental health center client reports that the client has refused to attend gymnastics for the past 2 weeks. Prior to that time, the child liked going to this class and was attending 3 times a week. In talking with the client, the nurse would:

- A. Ask her why she doesn't like gymnastics anymore
- B. Tell her that it is OK to be afraid of this activity

- C. Ask her to describe how things were at gymnastics before she started refusing to go
- D. Reassure her that things will get better once she begins the classes again

Answer: C

Explanation:

Section: Questions Set D

Explanation:

(A) The child has not said that she dislikes gymnastics. (B) The nurse will be able to obtain information on what events occurred at gymnastics prior to her refusal to attend. The nurse will also gain information about the child's perception of the problem. (C) The child has not said she is afraid to go to gymnastics. (D) False reassurance is inappropriate.

NEW QUESTION # 819

Azulfidine (Sulfasalazine) may be ordered for a client who has ulcerative colitis. Which of the following is a nursing implication for this drug?

- A. Administer 2 hours before meals.
- B. Limit fluids to 500 mL/day.
- C. Observe for skin rash and diarrhea.
- D. Monitor blood pressure, pulse.

Answer: C

Explanation:

(A) Fluids up to 2500-3000 mL/day are needed to prevent kidney stones. (B) The client should be instructed to take oral preparations with meals or snacks to lessen gastric irritation. (C) Sulfasalazine causes skin rash and diarrhea. (D) Blood pressure and pulse are not altered by sulfasalazine.

NEW QUESTION # 820

Iron dextran (Imferon) is a parenteral iron preparation.

The nurse should know that it:

- A. Should be given SC
- B. Is also called intrinsic factor
- C. Requires use of the Z-track method
- D. Must be given in the abdomen

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation

(A) Intrinsic factor is needed to absorb vitamin B12. (B) Iron dextran is given parenterally, but Z-track in a large muscle. (C) A Z-track method of injection is required to prevent staining and irritation of the tissue. (D) An SC injection is not deep enough and may cause subcutaneous fat abscess formation.

NEW QUESTION # 821

A 55-year-old client is unconscious, and his physician has decided to begin tube feeding him using a smallbore silicone feeding tube (Keofeed, Duo-Tube). After the tube is inserted, the nurse identifies the most reliable way to confirm appropriate placement is to:

- A. Aspirate gastric contents
- B. Place the tip of the tube under water and observe for air bubbles
- C. Auscultate air insufflated through the tube
- D. Obtain a chest x-ray

Answer: D

Explanation:

(A) Aspiration of gastric contents is usually a reliable way to verify tube placement. However, if the client has dark respiratory secretions from bleeding, tube feedings could be mistaken for respiratory secretions; in other words, aspirating an empty stomach is less reliable in this instance. In addition, it is common for small-bore feeding tubes to collapse when suction pressure is applied. (B) Insufflation of air into large-bore nasogastric tubes can usually be clearly heard. In small-bore tubes, it is more difficult to hear air, and it is difficult to distinguish between air in the stomach and air in the esophagus. (C) A chest x-ray is the most reliable means to determine placement of small-bore nasogastric tubes. (D) Observing for air bubbles when the tip is held under water is an unreliable means to determine correct tube placement for all types of nasogastric tubes. Air may come from both the respiratory tract and the stomach, and the client who is breathing shallowly may not force air out of the tube into the water.

NEW QUESTION # 822

A child receiving chemotherapeutic drugs experiences a loss of appetite directly related to the therapy. Which of the following strategies should be most effective in encouraging the child to eat?

- A. Schedule procedures immediately after eating so that the child will not be tired or in pain at mealtime.
- B. Offer the child smaller meals more frequently than usual, and include as many of her favorite foods as possible.
- C. Offer the child a diet with a wider variety of foods and with more seasoning than her usual diet.
- D. Provide a well-balanced diet at usual times, and restrict dessert if the child fails to eat well.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

(A) Because the child's appetite is capricious at best, regular servings may be overwhelming. Praise the child for what is eaten. (B) The child will soon learn that procedures follow meals and may play with food rather than eat it to avoid or delay the procedure. (C) Young children usually do not like highly seasoned foods and may need the security of usual foods. Such a change may actually increase anorexia. (D) Small servings appear more achievable to the child, and the inclusion of favorite foods can add a sense of security.
