A data analyst is performing a data merge within a spreadsheet using the tables below:

<https://www.bing.com/images/blob?bcid=S1XCF9p02M4GjpbGxHj0lrlaj9sw....4c>

The analyst is attempting to pull the addresses from Table 2 into Table 1 using the last names and is receiving an error message. Which of the following steps can the analyst perform to fix the error?

- A. Use concatenate to combine the tables.
- B. Review the spelling and data type.
- C. Ensure the formula is pulling from right to left.
- D. Sort the data by the last name field.

Answer: B

Explanation:

The error in merging data from Table 2 into Table 1 using last names could be due to discrepancies in spelling or data type between the two tables. It is essential to ensure that the last names are spelled consistently and that the data types are compatible for a successful merge. Option D suggests reviewing these aspects, which can potentially resolve the error, ensuring that each last name in Table 1 accurately corresponds to the same last name in Table 2, allowing for a successful data pull of addresses.

NEW QUESTION # 310

Which of the following data analysis tools increases the efficiency of data visualizations?

- A. SQL
- B. SAS
- C. Microsoft Excel
- D. RapidMiner

Answer: C

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth Explanation:

Data visualization is a critical component of data analysis, enabling analysts to represent data graphically to identify patterns, trends, and insights effectively. The efficiency of creating and interpreting these visualizations depends on the tools used.

Option A:SQL

* Rationale:Structured Query Language (SQL) is primarily used for managing and querying relational databases. While it is powerful for data extraction and manipulation, it lacks native capabilities for creating advanced data visualizations.

Option B:Microsoft Excel

* Rationale:Microsoft Excel is a widely used spreadsheet application that offers robust data visualization features, including charts, graphs, and pivot tables. Its user-friendly interface allows analysts to quickly create and customize visual representations of data, thereby increasing the efficiency of data visualization tasks.

NEW QUESTION # 311

An analyst is currently working on a ticket to revamp a company-wide dashboard that has been in use for five years. Which of the following should be the first step in the development process?

- A. Build an additional dashboard with fewer views tailored toward each specific team.
- B. Make changes to a frequently used report that is already in production.
- C. Talk to the group that made the request to determine the desired goal.
- D. Develop a more streamlined dashboard to roll out by the next delivery date.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth

When undertaking the task of revamping a long-standing company-wide dashboard, it's imperative to begin by understanding the specific needs and objectives of the stakeholders who requested the update. This ensures that the revamped dashboard aligns with current business requirements and provides relevant insights.

Option A:Talk to the group that made the request to determine the desired goal.

Rationale:Engaging with the requesting group allows the analyst to gather detailed information about their expectations, the challenges they face with the current dashboard, and the specific metrics or data visualizations they require. This collaborative approach ensures that the final product is user-centric and meets the actual needs of its users.

Option B:Make changes to a frequently used report that is already in production.

Rationale:Modifying an existing report without first understanding the specific needs of the stakeholders may lead to changes that do not address the core issues or requirements. This approach lacks the foundational step of requirement gathering and may result in misaligned outcomes.

Option C:Build an additional dashboard with fewer views tailored toward each specific team.

Rationale:While creating specialized dashboards for individual teams can be beneficial, doing so without first consulting the stakeholders may lead to unnecessary work or solutions that don't align with their needs. It's essential to first understand the overarching goals before deciding on the number and scope of dashboards required.

Option D:Develop a more streamlined dashboard to roll out by the next delivery date.

Rationale:Prioritizing a quick rollout without stakeholder consultation risks delivering a product that doesn't meet user needs. The focus should be on the quality and relevance of the dashboard, not just the speed of delivery.

Conclusion:Initiating the development process by engaging with the stakeholders ensures that the dashboard revamp is aligned with current business objectives and user requirements. This foundational step is critical for the success of the project.

NEW QUESTION # 312

A data analyst has received a data set that contains actual and projected sales for the fourth quarter of 2019. Which of the following statistical methods should the analyst use to find the measure of dispersion?

- A. Correlation
- B. Mean
- C. Variance
- D. Confidence interval

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 313

A data analyst is creating a report that will provide information about various regions, products, and time periods. Which of the following formats would be the MOST efficient way to deliver this report?

- A. A static report with a different page for every filtered view
- B. A daily email with snapshots of regional summaries
- C. A dashboard with filters at the top that the user can toggle
- D. A workbook with multiple tabs for each region

Answer: C

Explanation:

A dashboard with filters at the top that the user can toggle would be the most efficient way to deliver this report, because it allows the user to customize the view and explore different combinations of regions, products, and time periods. A workbook with multiple tabs for each region would be cumbersome and repetitive. A daily email with snapshots of regional summaries would not provide enough detail or interactivity. A static report with a different page for every filtered view would be too long and hard to navigate.
