CrowdStrike Certified SIEM Engineer Sample Questions (Q63-Q68):

NEW QUESTION # 63

Which are valid parse functions in CQL?

- A. parseCEF()
parseIETF()
parseJson()

- B. parseCEF()
parseJson()
parseXml()
- C. parseCEF() parseIETF()
parseXml()
- D. parseIETF()
parseJson()
parseXml(

Answer: B

Explanation:

The correct answer is B. CrowdStrike LogScale documentation includes parseCEF(), parseJson(), and parseXml() as valid parsing functions. parseCEF() parses CEF-encoded messages, parseJson() parses JSON data into fields, and parseXml() parses XML content into fields.

The other options are incorrect because parseIETF() is not a valid CQL parse function in the documented parsing function set, and option D also contains malformed syntax with parseXml(.

NEW QUESTION # 64

You are reviewing logs and find that the content appears as one large block of text within the @rawstring field for incoming firewall logs. The other expected structured fields are empty.

What is the cause of this issue?

- A. The sink was overloaded
- B. The timestamp format is incorrect
- C. The parser was incorrect
- D. The ingestion token is invalid

Answer: C

Explanation:

The correct answer is A. The parser was incorrect .

CrowdStrike LogScale documentation explains that when data is ingested without an appropriate parser , the event still arrives in LogScale, but it is not automatically parsed into fields . In that case, the event remains as raw text in @rawstring, while the expected extracted fields stay empty. That matches the exact symptom described in the question.

Why the other options are incorrect:

B is incorrect because if the ingestion token were invalid, the data generally would not be ingested successfully in the first place. C is incorrect because an overloaded sink may delay or buffer delivery, but it does not explain why only @rawstring is populated while structured fields are missing. D is incorrect because a timestamp parsing problem may cause time-related errors, but it would not by itself explain why the entire firewall event remains unparsed as raw text. CrowdStrike's parser error docs show that parse failures are tracked separately and that @rawstring is what you inspect when events fail to parse correctly.

NEW QUESTION # 65

What is the maximum number of active correlation rules in a CID?

- A. 0
- B. 1
- C. 2
- D. 3

Answer: D

Explanation:

The correct answer is D. 500 . In CrowdStrike Next-Gen SIEM correlation content limits, the maximum number of active correlation rules allowed in a single CID is 500 . This represents the upper bound for enabled rule objects at the customer-ID level and is intended to balance detection scale with performance and manageability of rule-driven detections. This is why the other options are incorrect and 500 is the correct limit.

NEW QUESTION # 66

You are creating a dashboard in Next-Gen SIEM and want to change the visualization used by a widget. What must be selected to make this change?

- A. Interactions options
- B. Edit in Search view
- C. Styling options

Answer: C

Explanation:

The correct answer is C. Styling options .

CrowdStrike LogScale dashboard training documentation says the Styling panel is where you modify widget properties and, for widgets like a Time Chart, change how the graph is displayed . That aligns with changing the widget's visualization. By contrast, Interactions is for widget interaction behavior, and Edit in Search view is for editing the underlying search rather than changing the visualization style.

NEW QUESTION # 67

Which role is most appropriate when a user only needs to view SIEM investigations and dashboards but must not modify content?

- A. NG SIEM Analyst - Read Only
- B. NG SIEM Analyst
- C. NG SIEM Administrator
- D. NG SIEM Security Lead

Answer: A

Explanation:

The least-privilege role for users who only need to view dashboards, searches, and investigation data without making changes is NG SIEM Analyst - Read Only . This role is designed for visibility without content modification or administrative access. The other roles provide broader operational or management permissions.
