You need to configure access to Vault1. The solution must meet the following requirements:

- * Ensure that User1 can manage and create keys in Vault1.
- * Ensure that User2 can access a certificate stored in Vault1.

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

User1: Key Vault Crypto Officer

User2: Key Vault Certificates Officer

As detailed in Microsoft documentation and the Exam Ref SC-300: Microsoft Identity and Access Administrator, Azure Key Vault provides role-based access control (RBAC) to manage keys, secrets, and certificates independently. The built-in roles are designed with the principle of least privilege - granting users only the permissions necessary to perform their tasks.

According to the Microsoft Learn module "Manage access to Key Vault using Azure RBAC", the relevant built-in roles are:

* Key Vault Crypto Officer - This role allows users to manage cryptographic keys in a key vault.

Specifically, the Crypto Officer can create, import, delete, and manage keys, as well as perform cryptographic operations such as encrypt, decrypt, sign, and verify. This aligns perfectly with the requirement that User1 must manage and create keys in Vault1.

* Key Vault Certificates Officer - This role allows a user to manage and retrieve certificates within a key vault. It provides access to read, import, and delete certificates but not to manage or create keys or secrets. This satisfies the requirement that User2 must access a certificate stored in Vault1.

The Exam Ref SC-300 emphasizes that the least privilege principle requires assigning users the lowest possible role that meets their operational needs. Therefore, assigning Key Vault Crypto Officer to User1 and Key Vault Certificates Officer to User2 ensures compliance, minimal access exposure, and operational
