A is the correct answer because when in maintenance mode, KPIs and notable events will begin to be generated again once the window is over. Maintenance mode is a feature of ITSI that allows you to temporarily suspend alerts and health score calculations for a service or an entity during planned maintenance or downtime. During maintenance mode, KPI searches still run, but the results are buffered until the window is over. Once the window is over, the buffered results are processed and alerts and health scores are generated if necessary. Reference: [Overview of maintenance windows in ITSI]

The KPI importance weight is a value that indicates how much a KPI contributes to the overall health score of a service. The importance weight can range from 1 (lowest) to 10 (highest). The statement that applies when configuring a KPI importance weight of 11 is:

B) Importance weight is unused for health scoring. This is true because an importance weight of 11 is invalid and cannot be used for health scoring. The maximum value for importance weight is 10.

The other statements do not apply because:

A) At least 10% of the KPIs will go critical. This is not true because an importance weight of 11 does not affect the severity level of any KPIs.

C) The service will go critical. This is not true because an importance weight of 11 does not affect the health score or status of any service.

D) It is a minimum health indicator KPI. This is not true because an importance weight of 11 does not indicate anything about the minimum health level of a KPI.

- A. Correlation searches.
- B. Adaptive thresholding.
- C. Anomaly detection.
- D. Maintenance windows

Explanation

It's a best practice to schedule maintenance windows with a 15- to 30-minute time buffer before and after you start and stop your maintenance work.
