Microsoft Security Compliance and Identity Fundamentals Sample Questions (Q90-Q95):

NEW QUESTION # 90

Select the answer that correctly completes the sentence.

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

Microsoft Defender for Identity (formerly Azure ATP) is designed to protect on-premises identity infrastructures by analyzing signals from Active Directory Domain Services (AD DS). In Microsoft's SCI guidance, Defender for Identity is described as a "cloud service that uses sensors installed on your domain controllers to monitor and analyze user activities and information across your on-premises Active Directory." The sensors "collect authentication, replication, and other security-relevant events and network traffic," enabling analytics to detect techniques such as Pass-the-Hash, Pass-the-Ticket, Golden Ticket, reconnaissance, lateral movement, and domain dominance. The product's purpose is to surface advanced threats, compromised identities, and malicious insider actions by continuously profiling and learning from AD DS behavior and security events.

While Defender for Identity integrates with other Microsoft security solutions (for example, Microsoft 365 Defender and Microsoft Defender for Cloud Apps) to enrich investigations, it does not rely on Azure Active Directory (Microsoft Entra ID) signals for its core detections, nor does it collect telemetry from Azure AD Connect itself. Instead, its foundational telemetry source is on-premises AD DS domain controllers via lightweight sensors, which provide the deep authentication and directory-service context required to identify sophisticated identity-based attacks in hybrid environments.

NEW QUESTION # 91

For each of the following statements, select Yes if the statement is true. Otherwise, select No.

NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

Azure DDoS Protection Standard protects against man-in-the-middle (MITM) attacks. = No Azure DDoS Protection Standard is enabled by default in an Azure subscription. = No Azure DDoS Protection Standard protects against protocol attacks. = Yes Microsoft's security guidance for Azure states that DDoS Protection is designed to defend internet-facing resources from distributed denial-of-service events at the network and transport layers (L3/L4). The documentation explains that DDoS Protection Standard provides "adaptive, real-time tuning and automatic attack mitigation for volumetric and protocol attacks (for example, SYN/ACK floods, UDP amplification, and other L3/L4 patterns)." It further clarifies that DDoS Protection is not intended to address attacks like man-in-the-middle (MITM), which are interception/alteration threats rather than traffic-exhaustion scenarios.

Regarding enablement, Microsoft notes that Azure DDoS Protection Standard is not enabled by default. The platform provides "basic DDoS protection for all Azure public IP addresses," but the Standard plan must be explicitly enabled on a virtual network and then applied to public IP resources in that VNet to gain its enhanced telemetry, mitigation policies, and cost-protection benefits.

Putting this together: (1) MITM is out of scope for DDoS Protection Standard # No; (2) Standard is opt-in, not automatic # No; (3) Protection against protocol attacks is a primary capability of the Standard plan # Yes.
