Scrum Professional Scrum Master I Sample Questions (Q48-Q53):

NEW QUESTION # 48
Every Scrum team must have a Product Owner and Scrum Master.

- A. True. Each must be 100% dedicated to the Scrum Team.
- B. False. A Product Owner can be replaced by a business analyst in the Development Team.
- C. True. Outcomes affected by their participation and availability.
- D. False. A Scrum Master is only required when asked for by the Development Team.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 49
Which phrase best describes a Product Owner?

- A. Requirements engineer.
- B. Go-between development team and customers.
- C. Team manager.
- D. Value optimizer.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 50
Currently, your Development Teams are organized to address a single layer only (for example, front end, middle tier, back end, and interfaces). What are three things to consider when deciding to move away from such component teams toward feature teams? (Choose three.)

- A. Getting support from the business side first helps.
- B. You cannot do Scrum without feature teams.
- C. Productivity may suffer when making this kind of move.
- D. Feature teams have less communication overhead.
- E. With feature teams, it is easier to calculate the productivity per team.

Answer: A,C,D

NEW QUESTION # 51
Which outcome is expected as Scrum Teams mature?

- A. There is no need for a time-boxed Sprint, since time-boxes are only for new Scrum Teams.
- B. The Sprint Retrospectives will grow to be longer than 4 hours.
- C. Sprint Reviews will no longer be needed.
- D. A Scrum Master is no longer needed since they are a mature team now.
- E. They will improve their definition of "Done" to include more stringent criteria.

Answer: E

Explanation:
According to the Scrum Guide1, the definition of "Done" is a formal description of the state of the Increment when it meets the quality measures required for the product. The definition guides the Development Team in creating a "Done" Increment. The definition of "Done" is created by the development organization (or Development Team if none is available from the development organization). The definition of "Done" may vary significantly per Scrum Team, depending on the context. One aspect of Scrum Teams inspecting how they work toward their Product Goal is that they improve their definition of "Done" over time.

NEW QUESTION # 52
What are two ways that regulatory compliance issues are dealt with in Scrum?
(choose the best two answers)

- A. They are addressed by a separate team who is responsible for compliance issues.
- B. They are added to the Product Backlog and addressed in early Sprints, while always requiring at least some business functionality, no matter how small.
- C. They are addressed along with functional development of the product.
- D. They are discussed, determined, and documented before the actual feature development Sprints.

Answer: B,C

Explanation:
The best two answers are B and D. These two ways of dealing with regulatory compliance issues are consistent with Scrum's values and principles, as they allow the Scrum Team to deliver valuable and potentially releasable increments of the product while meeting the necessary standards and regulations. They also enable the Scrum Team to inspect and adapt their compliance strategy based on feedback and changing requirements.
A is not a good answer because it creates a separate silo of responsibility for compliance issues, which can lead to delays, conflicts, and inefficiencies. It also violates the Scrum value of transparency, as the compliance team may not have full visibility into the product development process.
C is not a good answer because it implies a waterfall approach that assumes all the compliance requirements are known and fixed upfront, which is rarely the case. It also reduces the flexibility and responsiveness of the Scrum Team, as they may have to follow a rigid plan that does not reflect the current reality of the product or the market.
