NEW QUESTION # 56
Which organizational structures are required for network activities? Note: There are 3 correct answers to this question

- A. Controlling area
- B. Operating concern
- C. Sales organization
- D. Company code
- E. Plant

Answer: A,D,E

Explanation:
Controlling area, plant, and company code are some of the organizational structures required for network activities. Controlling area is an organizational unit that represents a closed system for cost accounting purposes. Plant is an organizational unit that represents a location where materials are produced or services are provided. Company code is an organizational unit that represents an independent accounting entity with its own balance sheet and profit and loss statement. NEW QUESTION # 57

What functionality can you perform with activity elements?

- A. Schedule WBS elements
- B. Assign work centers and capacities
- C. Create relationships
- D. Assign material

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 58
You are working with networks and WBS elements. Which of the following statements applies

- A. You have to maintain a network profile in the project profile
- B. You can reassign an activity from one network to another
- C. You can assign the network header to multiple WBS elements
- D. You have to activate the operative indicator Account Assignment Element for WBS element with activities.

Answer: A

Explanation:
One of the statements that applies to working with networks and WBS elements is that you have to maintain a network profile in the project profile. A network profile is a parameter that defines the basic properties of a network, such as its order type, number range, and scheduling parameters. A project profile is a parameter that defines the basic properties of a project, such as its project type, number range, and budget profile. You have to assign a network profile to a project profile in order to create networks within a project. NEW QUESTION # 59
Which of the following factors influence the scheduling of internal processing activities? Note: There are 3 correct answers to this question

- A. The relationships between activity elements
- B. An activated Scheduling indicator in the control key of the internal processing activity
- C. The unit (for example, hour, day) of the field Normal Duration field of the activity
- D. Whether the work for the internal activity is greater than its duration
- E. The factory calendar in the work center used for the internal processing activity

Answer: A,B,E

Explanation:
The scheduling of internal processing activities is influenced by several factors, such as the control key, the activity elements, and the factory calendar. The control key is a parameter that defines the basic properties of an activity, such as whether it is internally or externally processed, whether it requires confirmation or not, and whether it is relevant for scheduling or not. The scheduling indicator in the control key determines whether an activity is included in scheduling or not. The activity elements are subordinate units of an activity that represent partial tasks or work packages. The relationships between activity elements define the logical sequence and dependencies of the partial tasks. The factory calendar is a parameter that defines the working days and holidays for a work center. The factory calendar affects the duration and dates of an activity that uses the work center.
