- A. The draft plan review
- B. The PI confidence vote
- C. The Management Review and Problem-Solving workshop
- D. The second team breakout session

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 79

What is one of the tools associated with Design Thinking?

- A. Empathy maps
- B. Portfolio canvas
- C. Set based design
- D. Behavior-driven development

Answer: A

Explanation:

One of the tools associated with Design Thinking is empathy maps, which are a visual way to capture and organize the user's needs, goals, pains, and gains. Empathy maps help the team to understand the user's perspective, empathize with their emotions, and design solutions that address their problems and aspirations.

Empathy maps are typically created during the Discover phase of Design Thinking, where the team conducts user research and synthesizes the findings. References: SAFe for Teams Student Workbook: materials and exercises from Lesson 1;

NEW QUESTION # 81

Which of the following statements describes the balance between emergent design and intentional architecture when building in quality?

- A. It is required for backlog speed and designed refinement
- B. It is required for implementation speed and maturity
- C. It is required for speed of value delivery and Solution Intent
- D. It is required for speed of development and maintainability

Answer: C

Explanation:

The balance between emergent design and intentional architecture when building in quality is required for speed of development and maintainability. Emergent design is the practice of defining and evolving the architecture only as necessary to deliver the next increment of functionality, based on the feedback and learning from the previous increments. Intentional architecture is the practice of defining and implementing some upfront design guidelines and standards that enable the integration and evolution of the solution across multiple teams and domains. Both practices are implemented with enablers, which are technical items that support the development and delivery of features and capabilities. The balance between emergent design and intentional architecture allows the teams and the Agile Release Train (ART) to deliver value faster, with higher quality and lower risk, and to maintain and improve the solution over time¹². The other options are not accurate descriptions of the balance between emergent design and intentional architecture, as they either do not reflect the benefits of both practices, or use terms that are not relevant to the SAFe context.
