NEW QUESTION # 170

You have a Power BI dataset that contains a table named Temperature Readings. Temperature Readings contains the columns shown in the following table.

The table has 12 million rows. All the columns are needed for analysis.

You need to optimize the dataset to decrease the model size. The solution must not affect the precision of the data.

What should you do?

- A. Disable the Power Query load.
- B. Change the data type of the TempCelsius column to Integer
- C. Split the DateTime column into separate date and time columns.
- D. Round the Longitude column two decimal places.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Disable Power Query load.

Power Query queries that are intended support data integration with other queries should not be loaded to the model. To avoid loading the query to the model, take care to ensure that you disable query load in these instances.
