The use of amoxicillin/clavulanate is contraindicated in patients who:

- A. Are pregnant or breastfeeding.
- B. Have a hypersensitivity to beta-lactams.
- C. Have high blood pressure.
- D. Are hypersensitive to quinolones.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Amoxicillin/clavulanate is a penicillin-class (β-lactam) antibiotic. Its labeling includes a contraindication in patients with a history of hypersensitivity to β-lactams (e.g., penicillins; often caution with cephalosporins due to cross-reactivity). Allergy to quinolones (B) is unrelated pharmacologically. Pregnancy or breastfeeding (C) is not an absolute contraindication (risk/benefit assessment is used). Hypertension (D) is not relevant.

Therefore, beta-lactam hypersensitivity is the clear contraindication.
