Cloud Security Alliance Certificate of Cloud Security Knowledge v5 (CCSKv5.0) Sample Questions (Q318-Q323):

NEW QUESTION # 318

What is a primary benefit of implementing micro-segmentation within a Zero Trust Architecture?

- A. Reduces the need for encryption across the network
- B. Simplifies network design and maintenance
- C. Increases the overall performance of network traffic
- D. Enhances security by isolating workloads from each other

Answer: D

Explanation:

The primary benefit of implementing micro-segmentation within a Zero Trust Architecture is that it enhances security by isolating workloads from each other. Micro-segmentation involves dividing the network into smaller, isolated segments, so that even if an attacker gains access to one part of the network, they cannot easily move laterally to other parts. This is crucial in a Zero Trust model, which assumes that threats may exist both inside and outside the network, and security is enforced at a granular level for each workload.

Simplifying network design is not a benefit of micro-segmentation; in fact, it can add complexity due to the increased number of network segments. Increased network performance is not a primary outcome of micro-segmentation, which may introduce overhead. Reducing the need for encryption is incorrect because micro-segmentation doesn't eliminate the need for encryption; it works alongside encryption to provide better security.

NEW QUESTION # 322

Erin has a picture which he wants to store in the cloud and would like to share its URL so that his friends can see the picture. What type of cloud storage would you recommend for him?

- A. Block Storage
- B. Object Storage
- C. Raw storage
- D. Glacier

Answer: B

Explanation:

Object storage(also referred to as object-based storage) is a general term that refers to the way in which we organize and work with units of storage, called objects.

Every object contains three things:

The data itself: The data can be anything you want to store, from a family photo to a400,000-page manual for assembling an aircraft.

An expandable amount of metadata: The metadata is defined by whoever creates the object storage; it contains contextual information about what the data is, what it should be used for, its confidentiality, or anything else that is relevant to the way in which the data is used.

A globally unique identifier: The identifier is an address given to the object in order for the object to be found over a distributed system. This way, it's possible to find the data without having to know the physical location of the data (which could exist within different parts of a data center or different parts of the world).
