NEW QUESTION # 278

An organization established an agreement with a partner company for specialized help desk services. A senior security officer within the organization is tasked with providing documentation required to set up a dedicated VPN between the two entities. Which of the following should be required?

- A. NDA
- B. ISA
- C. SLA
- D. MOU

Answer: B

Explanation:

An ISA, or interconnection security agreement, is a document that should be required to set up a dedicated VPN between two entities that provide specialized help desk services. An ISA defines the technical and security requirements for establishing, operating, and maintaining a secure connection between two or more organizations. An ISA also specifies the roles and responsibilities of each party, the security controls and policies to be implemented, the data types and classifications to be exchanged, and the incident response procedures to be followed.
