- A. Active Directory
- B. Encrypting File System
- C. New Technology File System
- D. BitLocker

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 253

Which of the following is the best way to distribute custom images to 800 devices that include four device vendor classes with two types of user groups?

- A. Use xcopy to clone the hard drives from one to another.
- B. Use a local image deployment tool for each device.
- C. Use robocopy to move the files to each device.
- D. Use a network-based remote installation tool.

Answer: D

Explanation:

A network-based remote installation tool (such as Windows Deployment Services, MDT, or a similar solution) scales efficiently across hundreds of devices with varying hardware and user configurations. It allows you to segment deployments by vendor classes and user groups, automate imaging processes, and manage version control centrally - far more effectively than one-to-one cloning or file-copy methods.

NEW QUESTION # 255

A technician thinks that an application a user downloaded from the internet may not be the legitimate one, even though the name is the same. The technician needs to confirm whether the application is legitimate.

Which of the following should the technician do?

- A. Run the application in safe mode.
- B. Compare the hash value from the vendor.
- C. Verify the file name is correct.
- D. Run Task Manager and compare the process ID.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

To ensure the authenticity of a downloaded application, the most reliable method is to verify the file's hash (e.g., SHA256, MD5) against the value provided by the legitimate vendor. If the hash values match, the file has not been altered or tampered with. This verification confirms the integrity and authenticity of the executable.

B: Process IDs are dynamic and not unique to specific software.

C: Running in safe mode doesn't validate legitimacy-it only runs the app in a minimal environment.

D: File names can be spoofed; matching the name does not prove authenticity.
