APICS Certified Supply Chain Professional Sample Questions (Q531-Q536):

NEW QUESTION # 531

Which language is used to design a database?

- A. structured query language
- B. data dictionary
- C. data definition language
- D. java programming language
- E. data manipulation language

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 532

Which of the following actions is most likely to increase total supply chain risk?

- A. Expanding operations to multiple locations
- B. Consolidating manufacturing locations
- C. Standardizing components used in a product family
- D. Reducing the supplier base for commodity-type components

Answer: D

Explanation:

* Supply Chain Risk: The total supply chain risk refers to the likelihood of disruptions and the potential impact those disruptions can have on the supply chain's ability to function effectively.

* Reducing Supplier Base: When a company reduces the number of suppliers for commodity-type components, it becomes more dependent on a few suppliers. This increases vulnerability because any disruption at one of these suppliers (e.g., financial instability, natural disasters, or quality issues) can have a significant impact on the company's operations.

* Comparative Analysis:

* Standardizing Components: This can reduce risk by simplifying inventory management and improving flexibility.

* Expanding Operations: This can distribute risk across multiple locations.

* Consolidating Manufacturing Locations: This might increase risk but usually for specific events like regional disruptions.

* Conclusion: Reducing the supplier base for commodities is most likely to increase total supply chain risk due to increased dependence on fewer suppliers, leading to higher exposure to supply disruptions.
