- C. 2->3->1->4->6->5
- D. 3 .> 2 -> 1 -> 4-> 6-> 5

Answer: B

Explanation:
Setting up a computer forensics lab involves several critical steps that need to be executed in a logical and efficient order. The correct sequence starts with planning and budgeting(2), as it is essential to understand the scope, resources, and financial commitment required for the lab. The next step involves considering the physical location and structural design (1) to ensure the lab meets operational needs and security requirements.
Work area considerations (3) follow, focusing on the layout and functionality of the workspace. Human resource considerations (6) are crucial next, to ensure the lab is staffed with qualified personnel. Physical security recommendations (4) are then implemented to protect the lab and its resources. Finally, forensic lab licensing (5) ensures the lab operates within legal and regulatory frameworks.
References:The ECIH v3 course materials from EC-Council outline the foundational steps for setting up a computer forensics lab, stressing the importance of thorough planning and adherence to best practices in lab design and operation.
