- C. Preparation, Detection, Analysis and Containment
- D. All

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 378

A cybercrime in which the attacker floods a server with internet traffic to prevent users from accessing connected online services and sites

- A. Virus
- B. Spoofing

- C. Phishing
- D. DDOS

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 379

Which access control model can grant access to a given object based on complex rules?

- A. DAC
- B. MAC
- C. RBAC
- D. ABAC

Answer: D

Explanation:

Attribute-Based Access Control (ABAC) grants access based on complex logical rules that evaluate attributes of the user, resource, action, and environment. Examples include user role, department, time of day, device type, and data sensitivity. These attributes are evaluated dynamically, allowing fine-grained and context-aware access decisions.

DAC allows owners to grant permissions, MAC uses labels and classifications, and RBAC assigns permissions based on roles.

None of these provide the same level of flexibility as ABAC. Because ABAC supports complex, rule-based decisions, it is widely used in modern cloud environments and zero trust architectures.

NEW QUESTION # 380

Why is a "Red Book" important in Business Continuity Planning?

- A. All
- B. Easy to carry and transfer
- C. When disasters disable power and electronic access
- D. To have a hard copy for easy access

Answer: C

Explanation:

A Red Book is a hard-copy version of critical business continuity and emergency procedures. It is essential when disasters such as hurricanes, earthquakes, or cyberattacks disable power, networks, or electronic backups. In such scenarios, electronic access may be impossible, making physical documentation vital.

NEW QUESTION # 381
