Identify when a user's credentials are compromised and shared on the dark web.

Answer:

Explanation:

□ Explanation

□ Box 1: A user risk policy

Identify when a user's credentials are compromised and shared on the dark web.

User risk-based Conditional Access policy

Identity Protection analyzes signals about user accounts and calculates a risk score based on the probability that the user has been compromised. If a user has risky sign-in behavior, or their credentials have been leaked, Identity Protection will use these signals to calculate the user risk level. Administrators can configure user risk-based Conditional Access policies to enforce access controls based on user risk, including requirements such as:

Block access

Allow access but require a secure password change.

A secure password change will remediate the user risk and close the risky user event to prevent unnecessary noise for administrators.

Box 2: Require password change

Provide users that have compromised credentials with the ability to self-remediate.

A secure password change will remediate the user risk and close the risky user event to prevent unnecessary noise for administrators
