NEW QUESTION # 173

Which analysis method is MOST frequently used as an input to a security risk assessment?

Available Choices (select all choices that are correct)

- A. Failure Mode and Effects Analysis
- B. Job Safety Analysis
- C. System Safety Analysis(SSA)
- D. Process Hazard Analysis (PHA)

Answer: D

Explanation:

A Process Hazard Analysis (PHA) is a systematic method of identifying and evaluating the potential hazards associated with an industrial process. A PHA can help to identify the sources of cyber threats, the consequences of cyber incidents, and the existing safeguards and mitigation measures. A PHA is most frequently used as an input to a security risk assessment because it provides a comprehensive and structured overview of the process and its risks, which can then be used to determine the security level targets and security countermeasures for the industrial automation and control system (IACS). A PHA can also help to align the security objectives with the safety objectives of the process, and to ensure that the security measures do not compromise the safety or operability of the process.
