What file format must the list be for this to be successfully accomplished?

- A. JSON
- B. PDF
- C. XLSX
- D. TXT

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 48

When troubleshooting a Windows sensor that appears to be installed but is not running, what should be verified to ensure they are installed and running?

- A. Network Store Interface and Network List Service
- B. Windows firewall and internet connectivity to the CrowdStrike cloud
- C. LMHosts and Windows Base Filtering Engine

Answer: C

Explanation:

The correct answer is LMHosts and Windows Base Filtering Engine . The Windows sensor depends on certain Windows services being installed and running. The course guide identifies required services including LMHosts, Network Store Interface, Windows Base Filtering Engine, and Windows Power Service, with additional services depending on proxy and network configuration. Among the answer choices, LMHosts and BFE are both explicitly listed required services. Windows firewall and cloud connectivity are important connectivity considerations, but the question asks what services should be verified as installed and running. Network Store Interface is required, but Network List Service is not the documented pair in the provided option. Therefore, option A is the best match.

NEW QUESTION # 49

Which of the following Machine Learning (ML) sliders will only detect or prevent high confidence malicious items?

- A. Moderate
- B. Minimal
- C. Aggressive
- D. Cautious

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Machine Learning (ML) slider that will only detect or prevent high confidence malicious items is Cautious. The ML slider allows you to adjust the level of sensitivity and aggressiveness of the Falcon sensor's ML engine, which uses artificial intelligence to identify and stop unknown threats.

The Cautious setting will enable the sensor to detect and prevent only high-confidence malicious events, while allowing low-confidence events to run without interference. This setting will also generate less noise and false positives than higher settings, such as Moderate or Extra Aggressive.

NEW QUESTION # 50

In order to receive the most stable sensor updates, what level of automatic sensor updates should be applied to a host?

- A. Auto-N-1
- B. Auto-N-2

- A. A new group of analysts need to be able to place hosts under Network Containment
- B. Your organization has additional IP addresses that need to be able to access the Falcon console
- C. Your organization has resources that need to be accessible when hosts are network contained
- D. You want to automate the Network Containment process based on the IP address of a host

Answer: C

Explanation:

The scenario that best describes when you would add IP addresses to the containment policy is that your organization has resources that need to be accessible when hosts are network contained. As explained in the previous question, adding IP addresses to the containment policy allows you to create an allowlist of trusted IP addresses that can communicate with your contained hosts. This can be useful when you need to isolate a host from the network due to a potential compromise or investigation, but still want to allow it to access certain resources or services that are essential for your organization's operations or security.
