- A. Performance logs
- B. Change logs
- C. Troubleshooting logs
- D. Usage logs

答案: B,C

解題說明:

In the Administration Console of SAP Cloud Identity Services, the available log types are Troubleshooting logs and Change logs. Troubleshooting logs provide detailed information about system errors, authentication failures, or integration issues, enabling administrators to diagnose and resolve technical problems efficiently.

Change logs record modifications to user identities, system configurations, or security settings, offering an audit trail for tracking administrative actions and ensuring compliance with security policies. These logs are critical for maintaining system integrity and supporting forensic analysis in identity management. Usage logs, which might track user activity, and Performance logs, which monitor system performance metrics, are not standard log types in the Cloud Identity Services Administration Console, as its focus is on identity-related diagnostics and auditing. By providing Troubleshooting and Change logs, SAP Cloud Identity Services ensures administrators have the tools needed to monitor and secure identity management processes effectively, aligning with best practices for cloud-based security governance.
