IAPP Certified Information Privacy Professional/United States (CIPP/US) Sample Questions (Q115-Q120):

NEW QUESTION # 115

Which federal law or regulation preempts state law?

- A. Telemarketing Sales Rule
- B. Controlling the Assault of Non-Solicited Pornography and Marketing Act
- C. Electronic Communications Privacy Act of 1986
- D. Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) of 1996 is a federal law that regulates the privacy and security of health information in the United States. HIPAA preempts state laws that are contrary to its provisions, unless the state laws provide more stringent protections for health information. HIPAA establishes a floor of federal standards for health information privacy and security, but allows states to enact laws that are more protective of individuals' rights. For example, some states may require more specific consent from individuals before disclosing their health information, or impose stricter penalties for violations of health information privacy and security. HIPAA also provides exceptions for certain state laws that serve a compelling public interest, such as public health, safety, or welfare.

NEW QUESTION # 116

Which authority supervises and enforces laws regarding advertising to children via the Internet?

- A. The Department of Homeland Security
- B. The Federal Trade Commission
- C. The Office for Civil Rights
- D. The Federal Communications Commission

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 117

Which entities must comply with the Telemarketing Sales Rule?

- A. Nonprofit organizations calling on their own behalf
- B. For-profit and not-for-profit organizations when selling additional services to establish customers
- C. For-profit organizations and for-profit telefundraisers regarding charitable solicitations
- D. For-profit organizations calling businesses when a binding contract exists between them

Answer: C

Explanation:

The Telemarketing Sales Rule (TSR) is a federal regulation that applies to telemarketing calls, which are defined as "a plan, program, or campaign which is conducted to induce the purchase of goods or services or a charitable contribution, by use of one or more telephones and which involves more than one interstate telephone call."<sup>1</sup> The TSR requires telemarketers to make specific disclosures, prohibit misrepresentations, limit the times and number of calls, and set payment restrictions for the sale of certain goods and services. The TSR also gives consumers the right to opt out of receiving telemarketing calls by registering their phone numbers on the National Do Not Call Registry.<sup>2</sup> The TSR applies to both for-profit and not-for-profit organizations, but there are some exemptions and partial exemptions for certain types of entities, calls, and transactions. For example, the TSR does not apply to nonprofit organizations calling on their own behalf, as they are not considered to be engaged in telemarketing. However, if a nonprofit organization hires a for-profit telemarketer or telefundraiser to solicit charitable contributions on its behalf, the for-profit entity must comply with the TSR, as it is engaged in telemarketing. Similarly, the TSR does not apply to for-profit organizations calling businesses when a binding contract exists between them, as they are not considered to be inducing the purchase of goods or services. However, if a for-profit organization calls businesses to sell additional services to established customers, the TSR applies, as it is considered to be inducing the purchase of goods or services.<sup>3</sup> Therefore, among the four options, only for-profit organizations and for-profit telefundraisers regarding charitable solicitations must comply with the TSR, as they are engaged in telemarketing and do not fall under any of the exemptions or partial exemptions. References: 1: eCFR :: 16 CFR Part 310 - Telemarketing Sales Rule<sup>3</sup>, Section 310.22: Telemarketing Sales Rule | Federal Trade Commission<sup>1</sup>, Rule Summary<sup>3</sup>: Complying with the Telemarketing Sales Rule - Federal Trade Commission<sup>2</sup>, Exemptions to the TSR.

NEW QUESTION # 118

A student has left high school and is attending a public postsecondary institution. Under what condition may a school legally disclose educational records to the parents of the student without consent?

- A. If the student has applied to transfer to another institution
- B. If the student is still a dependent for tax purposes
- C. If the student is in danger of academic suspension
- D. If the student has not yet turned 18 years of age

Answer: B

Explanation:

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) is a federal law that protects the privacy of students' educational records. FERPA generally requires schools to obtain written consent from students before disclosing their records to third parties, such as parents. However, FERPA allows some exceptions to this rule, such as when the disclosure is for health or safety emergencies, or when the student is still a dependent for tax purposes. According to FERPA, a school may disclose educational records to the parents of a student who is claimed as a dependent on the parents' most recent federal income tax return, without the student's consent.

This exception applies regardless of the student's age or enrollment status at a postsecondary institution. References:

NEW QUESTION # 119

Your company, an online store selling digital keys to video games, has received a data access request from an individual. Specifically, the individual wants access to her recent purchase history, as she has misplaced the emails containing the digital keys to multiple game purchases she made last month. From a security standpoint, what would the user have to do under CCPA in order to acceptably verify her identity?

- A. Take a photo of herself with her driver license
- B. Phone the company and provide her contact details and credit card number
- C. Log in to her password-protected account with the company
- D. Provide a notarized affidavit signed by two witnesses.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Under the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA), businesses must verify the identity of individuals making data access requests to ensure the security of personal information. The most secure and straightforward way to verify a consumer's identity is by requiring the individual to log in to their password-protected account, as this demonstrates that the requester is the account owner.

Why Password-Protected Accounts Are Best for Verification:

Account-Based Relationship:

If the consumer has a password-protected account with the business, verification can typically be achieved by having the consumer log in to the account. This is considered a sufficient method of verifying identity under CCPA guidelines.

Minimizing Risk:

Verifying identity through account login reduces the risk of fraudulent access to personal information, as only the account owner has access to the login credentials.
