Oracle Database 19c: Data Guard Administration Sample Questions (Q55-Q60):

NEW QUESTION # 55

Which four statements are true regarding SQL Apply filters for a logical standby database?

- A. They can be used to skip all SQL statements executed on a specific pluggable database (PDB) within a standby multitenant container database (CDB).
- B. They can be used to skip CREATE TABLE commands.
- C. They can be used to skip ALTER TABLE commands on specific tables.
- D. They can be used to skip execution of DML triggers on a table while allowing the DML to execute.
- E. They can be used to stop SQL apply if it encounters an error.
- F. They can only be used to skip DML statements on a table.
- G. They can be used to skip ALTER STEM and ALTER DATABASE commands.

Answer: B,C,D,G

Explanation:

Based on the Oracle Database 19c documentation, the correct answers about SQL Apply filters for a logical standby database are:

- A). They can be used to skip execution of DML triggers on a table while allowing the DML to execute.
- B). They can be used to skip CREATE TABLE commands.
- C). They can be used to skip ALTER SYSTEM and ALTER DATABASE commands.
- G). They can be used to skip ALTER TABLE commands on specific tables.

Comprehensive Detailed Explanation:

SQL Apply filters in a logical standby database can be set to control which SQL operations are applied to the standby. These filters allow for certain commands to be skipped, ensuring that they do not impact the standby database. For example, filters can be used to skip the execution of DML triggers to prevent them from firing during SQL Apply, while still allowing the underlying DML to be executed on the logical standby database. This is particularly useful when certain triggers are not desired to run in a standby environment. CREATE TABLE, ALTER SYSTEM, ALTER DATABASE, and specific ALTER TABLE commands can also be skipped using SQL Apply filters to prevent unwanted structural changes or administrative operations from affecting the logical standby database. These capabilities provide a level of control to ensure that the logical standby database reflects only the desired state of the primary database.

Reference:

Oracle Database SQL Language Reference and Oracle Data Guard Concepts and Administration guide offer comprehensive details on the use of SQL Apply filters, including the range of SQL statements that can be influenced by these filters in a logical standby database environment.

NEW QUESTION # 56

Which TWO statements are true regarding Data Guard Broker?

- A. It can be used to perform failovers and switchovers.
- B. It automatically starts the DMON process for the database instances that are part of a Data Guard configuration.
- C. It can be used to monitor redo transport and log apply services.
- D. It automatically adds the primary database to an existing broker configuration when Enterprise Manager Cloud Control is used to create a standby.
- E. It can be used to create and manage standby databases.

Answer: A,E

NEW QUESTION # 57

Which two Data Guard features require the use of flashback database by the broker?

- A. Read-Mostly physical standby implementations
- B. Snapshot Standby databases
- C. Fast-Start Failover
- D. Far Sync Instances
- E. Real Time Query

Answer: B,C

NEW QUESTION # 58

Examine this validate command:

DGMGRL> VALIDATE DATABASE VERBOSE "<database name>";

Which THREE statements are TRUE?

- A. The command can be used for a logical standby database.
- B. The command performs network connectivity checks between members of a broker configuration.
- C. The command performs a comprehensive set of database checks prior to a role change.
- D. The command performs a comparison of SPFILE entries between the primary database and a specified standby database.
- E. The command uses information available in various Oracle Data Guard views as well as the Automatic Diagnostic Repository.

Answer: A,B,C

Explanation:

- * The command performs a comprehensive set of database checks prior to a role change (A): The VALIDATE DATABASE command in Data Guard Manager (DGMGRL) is designed to perform an exhaustive check of a specified database's readiness for a role change, such as a switchover or failover.
- * The command performs network connectivity checks between members of a broker configuration (C): One of the checks includes verifying that the necessary network connectivity exists between the databases in a Data Guard Broker configuration.
- * The command can be used for a logical standby database (D): The VALIDATE DATABASE command is versatile and can be used for both physical and logical standby databases to ensure their readiness for role changes.

NEW QUESTION # 59

Which two are prerequisites for configuring flashback database for Oracle 19c databases, in a Data Guard environment?

- A. The data guard broker must be used.
- B. The Data Guard real-time apply feature must be enabled.
- C. A fast recovery area must be configured.
- D. A far sync instance must be configured to flash back a standby when the primary has been flashed back.
- E. The database must be in ARCHIVELOG mode.

Answer: C,E

Explanation:

A fast recovery area must be configured (B): Flashback Database requires a fast recovery area to be set up because flashback logs are stored there. The fast recovery area is a unified storage location for all recovery-related files and activities.

The database must be in ARCHIVELOG mode (C): Flashback Database operation relies on the ability to archive redo logs. Therefore, the database must be running in ARCHIVELOG mode for Flashback Database to be enabled.
