HashiCorp Certified: Terraform Associate (003) (HCTA0-003) Sample Questions (Q215-Q220):

NEW QUESTION # 215

Which type of block fetches or computes information for use elsewhere in a Terraform configuration?

- A. data
- B. provider
- C. local
- D. resource

Answer: A

Explanation:

Detailed Explanation:

* Rationale for Correct Answer (A): data blocks fetch information from providers (like AMI IDs, network info) that can be used in other resources.

* Analysis of Incorrect Options:

* B. local: Stores values, doesn't fetch external data.

* C. resource: Defines managed infrastructure, not read-only data.

* D. provider: Configures connection to APIs, not data fetching.

* Key Concept: Data sources are read-only queries into existing infrastructure.

NEW QUESTION # 216

When should you use the force-unlock command?

- A. Automatic unlocking failed
- B. You have a high priority change
- C. apply failed due to a state lock
- D. You see a status message that you cannot acquire the lock

Answer: A

Explanation:

You should use the force-unlock command when automatic unlocking failed. Terraform will lock your state for all operations that could write state, such as plan, apply, or destroy. This prevents others from acquiring the lock and potentially corrupting your state. State locking happens automatically on all operations that could write state and you won't see any message that it is happening. If state locking fails, Terraform will not continue. You can disable state locking for most commands with the -lock flag but it is not recommended. If acquiring the lock is taking longer than expected, Terraform will output a status message. If Terraform doesn't output a message, state locking is still occurring if your backend supports it. Terraform has a force-unlock command to manually unlock the state if unlocking failed. Be very careful with this command. If you unlock the state when someone else is holding the lock it could cause multiple writers. Force unlock should only be used to unlock your own lock in the situation where automatic unlocking failed. To protect you, the force-unlock command requires a unique lock ID. Terraform will output this lock ID if unlocking fails. This lock ID acts as a nonce, ensuring that locks and unlocks target the correct lock. The other situations are not valid reasons to use the force-unlock command. You should not use the force-unlock command if you have a high priority change, if apply failed due to a state lock, or if you see a status message that you cannot acquire the lock. These situations indicate that someone else is holding the lock and you should wait for them to finish their operation or contact them to resolve the issue. Using the force-unlock command in these cases could result in data loss or inconsistency. Reference = [State Locking], [Command: force-unlock]

NEW QUESTION # 217

You decide to move a Terraform state file to Amazon S3 from another location. You write the code below into a file called backend.tf

□ Which command will migrate your current state file to the new S3 remote backend?

- A. terraform init
- B. terraform refresh
- C. terraform push

- D. terraform state

Answer: A

Explanation:

This command will initialize the new backend and prompt you to migrate the existing state file to the new location<sup>3</sup>. The other commands are not relevant for this task.

NEW QUESTION # 218

terraform validate confirms that your infrastructure matches the Terraform state file.

- A. False
- B. True

Answer: A

Explanation:

terraform validate does not confirm that your infrastructure matches the Terraform state file. It only checks whether the configuration files in a directory are syntactically valid and internally consistent<sup>3</sup>. To confirm that your infrastructure matches the Terraform state file, you need to use terraform plan or terraform apply with the -refresh-only option.

NEW QUESTION # 219

The Terraform binary version and provider versions must match each other in a single configuration.

- A. False
- B. True

Answer: A

Explanation:

The Terraform binary version and provider versions do not have to match each other in a single configuration. Terraform allows you to specify provider version constraints in the configuration's terraform block, which can be different from the Terraform binary version<sup>1</sup>. Terraform will use the newest version of the provider that meets the configuration's version constraints<sup>2</sup>. You can also use the dependency lock file to ensure Terraform is using the correct provider version<sup>3</sup>. References =
