CSI Canadian Securities Course Exam2 Sample Questions (Q155-Q160):

NEW QUESTION # 155

Which vehicle is least appropriate for an institutional investor?

- A. University endowment
- B. Family office
- C. Dark pool
- D. Discount broker

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 156

Which type of mutual funds tend to have the lowest management fees?

- A. Small cap
- B. Asset allocation
- C. Index
- D. Bond

Answer: C

Explanation:

Index mutual funds are structured to replicate the performance of a market index, such as the S&P/TSX Composite Index. Since these funds do not require active management, their management fees are among the lowest compared to other types of mutual funds. Active management in asset allocation, small-cap, or bond funds involves more frequent trading and research, increasing operational costs.

NEW QUESTION # 157

What is a characteristic of provincial savings bonds?

- A. Backed by provincial assets
- B. Can be issued Internationally.
- C. Mature every six months
- D. Available only at a certain time

Answer: D

Explanation:

Provincial savings bonds are available for purchase only during specific periods, often during annual campaigns. They are a secure investment option backed by the issuing provincial government and are available only to residents of the issuing province. They are not issued internationally and do not mature every six months.

* Volume 1, Chapter 6: Fixed-Income Securities, section on "Provincial and Municipal Securities" discusses the features and issuance timing of provincial savings bonds.

NEW QUESTION # 158

Which type of commodity ETF is most suitable for an investor seeking to gain exposure to the spot price of a commodity?

- A. Equity-based
- B. Physical-based
- C. Swap-based
- D. Futures-based.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Commodity Exchange-Traded Funds (ETFs) provide investors with exposure to commodities such as gold, oil, and agricultural products. The most suitable type of commodity ETF for gaining exposure to the spot price of a commodity is the Physical-based ETF because it involves direct ownership or storage of the commodity. For instance, gold ETFs backed by physical gold store bullion in vaults.

1. Physical-based ETFs

These ETFs hold the actual commodity in physical form, which ensures a close tracking of the spot price.

Physical gold ETFs, for example, store gold bars and adjust the NAV (Net Asset Value) based on the current spot price. This eliminates discrepancies caused by futures contracts or swaps, making them ideal for tracking spot prices.

2. Swap-based ETFs

These rely on derivative agreements (swaps) to replicate the price movements of a commodity. While cost-effective, they do not hold the actual commodity, and their performance may slightly deviate from the spot price due to tracking errors or counterparty risks.

3. Futures-based ETFs

These use futures contracts to gain exposure. However, futures contracts come with complexities such as contango and backwardation, which can cause performance differences from the spot price over time.

4. Equity-based ETFs

These invest in shares of companies involved in the commodity sector (e.g., mining or energy companies).

Their performance is influenced by company-specific factors and broader equity market trends, making them unsuitable for tracking spot prices.
