VMware vDefend Security for VCF 5.x Administrator Sample Questions (Q37-Q42):

NEW QUESTION # 37

Which of the following is true regarding private IP ranges in NTA?

- A. Private IP ranges are automatically in scope based on RFC1918
- B. Private IP ranges are automatically in scope based on RFC1918 and manually added
- C. Private IP ranges are based on user-defined IP pools
- D. Private IP ranges are added manually

Answer: A

Explanation:

For Network Traffic Analysis (NTA) to effectively analyze threats, it must understand the context of the network—specifically, it needs to differentiate between internal East-West traffic and external North-South traffic. To make deployment seamless, vDefend NTA automatically scopes and defines internal traffic based on the standard RFC 1918 private IP address space (10.0.0.0/8, 172.16.0.0/12, and 192.168.0.0/16). Because these ranges are globally recognized as private, non-routable internet addresses, NTA considers them internal "out-of-the-box" without requiring the administrator to manually input every internal subnet before analysis can begin.

NEW QUESTION # 38

Which two factors are typically used to create distributed firewall policies that protect lateral workload communication?

(Choose two)

Response:

- A. Disk capacity of the destination VM
- B. VM Tag or Security Group membership
- C. Storage policy affinity
- D. Disk capacity of the destination VM
- E. MAC address of the source VM

Answer: A,B

NEW QUESTION # 39

Which of the following are advantages of VMware vDefend versus using legacy security tools? (Select all that apply)

- A. No network changes are required to implement security policies
- B. IP/Subnet based policy creation
- C. Centralized Intrusion Detection and Intrusion Prevention
- D. Tapless network visibility

Answer: A,C,D

Explanation:

VMware vDefend (NSX) provides a paradigm shift from legacy hardware security:

No network changes required (Option A): Legacy micro-segmentation required complex re-architecting of IP subnets and VLANs. vDefend enforces rules at the vNIC, allowing you to secure workloads without altering the underlying physical or logical network topology.

Tapless network visibility (Option B): Legacy tools require physical network taps or heavy SPAN ports to see traffic. vDefend inherently "sees" all East-West traffic directly inside the hypervisor kernel, providing complete visibility without hardware taps.

Centralized IDS/IPS (Option C): While the enforcement is distributed to every host, the management and detection engine provides a single, centralized pane of glass for the entire data center's intrusion events, replacing the need to manage dozens of disparate legacy physical appliances.

(Note: Option D is a legacy concept, not an advantage; vDefend's advantage is moving away from IP-based rules to dynamic, context-based tagging).

NEW QUESTION # 40

Which component is responsible for defining the security policy in a software-defined firewall architecture?

Response:

- A. NSX Policy API or UI
- B. vSphere Update Manager
- C. NSX Application Platform
- D. DRS Load Balancer

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 41

In the context of Role-Based access control which of the following is NOT a built-in vDefend Role?

- A. Auditor
- B. Network Admin
- C. Privileged Admin
- D. Security Admin

Answer: C

Explanation:

VMware vDefend includes several pre-configured, built-in roles to enforce the principle of least privilege and separation of duties. Valid out-of-the-box built-in roles include Enterprise Admin, Network Admin, Security Admin, and Auditor. "Privileged Admin" is a fabricated term in this context and is NOT a standard, built-in role within the vDefend RBAC architecture.
