Sample Questions (Q14-Q19):

NEW QUESTION # 14

An investigations manager at a cryptoasset exchange is developing an AML risk-rating framework for cryptoassets under consideration for support by the exchange. Which criteria is most important for rating the residual AML risk of a particular cryptoasset?

- A. Whether the blockchain of the asset is public or private
- B. The profitability of the cryptoasset for the exchange's business
- C. The number of other exchanges that support the cryptoasset
- D. How the cryptoasset will be monitored for unusual activity

Answer: D

Explanation:

The ability to monitor the cryptoasset for unusual activity directly impacts the residual AML risk, as effective monitoring enables detection and prevention of illicit transactions. Even if a blockchain is public or private (A), or the asset is profitable (B), the lack of proper monitoring mechanisms increases risk. The number of exchanges supporting the asset (D) is less significant than monitoring capability.

AML frameworks and DFSA guidance stress that risk mitigation depends heavily on effective transaction monitoring.

NEW QUESTION # 15

In cryptoasset compliance, "integration" refers to:

- A. Mixing crypto to hide origins.
- B. Staking assets to earn rewards.
- C. Converting illicit crypto into fiat or legitimate assets.
- D. Transferring crypto between wallets.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Integration is the final stage of money laundering, where illicit funds re-enter the economy appearing legitimate - e.g., converting crypto into fiat via exchanges or buying assets.

NEW QUESTION # 16

Which is an accurate description of a Decentralized Autonomous Organization (DAO)?

- A. DAOs are decentralized blockchain organizations that require managerial activity by humans.
- B. DAOs are cryptocurrency funds in which the board of directors submit their votes using blockchain technology.
- C. DAOs are decentralized blockchain technologies that use traditional contracts instead of smart contracts.
- D. DAOs are organizational structures through which how a protocol will operate is determined by a group of actors.

Answer: D

Explanation:

DAOs are decentralized organizational structures where protocol governance and operational decisions are made collectively by token holders or participants rather than centralized management. This group voting and consensus determine how the protocol functions.

DAOs do not rely on traditional contracts (D) nor necessarily require ongoing human managerial control (A). They are not simply funds with boards voting (C) but represent decentralized governance mechanisms.

NEW QUESTION # 17

What is the correct risk assessment equation used in AML/CFT compliance frameworks, including for cryptoasset risk evaluations?

- A. Inherent Risk - Control Effectiveness = Residual Risk
- B. Residual Risk + Control Effectiveness = Inherent Risk
- C. Inherent Risk + Control Effectiveness = Residual Risk
