Splunk Core Certified Power User Exam Sample Questions (Q220-Q225):

NEW QUESTION # 220

Which of the following is a function of the Splunk Common Information Model (CIM)?

- A. Algorithmically shifting events to other indexes.
- B. Normalizing data across a Splunk deployment.
- C. Reingesting previously indexed data with new field names.
- D. Providing templates for reports and dashboards.

Answer: B

Explanation:

NEW QUESTION # 221

Which of the following statements about tags is true?

- A. Tags can make your data more understandable.
- B. Tags are searched by using the syntax tag: <fieldname>
- C. Tags are case insensitive.
- D. Tags are created at index time.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Tags are aliases or alternative names for field values in Splunk. They can make your data more understandable by using common or descriptive terms instead of cryptic or technical terms. For example, you can tag a field value such as "200" with "OK" or "success" to indicate that it is a HTTP status code for a successful request. Tags are case sensitive, meaning that "OK" and "ok" are different tags. Tags are created at search time, meaning that they are applied when you run a search on your data. Tags are searched by using the syntax tag:<tagname>, where <tagname> is the name of the tag you want to search for.

NEW QUESTION # 222

There are several ways to access the field extractor. Which option automatically identifies data type, source type, and sample event?

- A. Event Actions > Extract Fields
- B. Fields sidebar > Extract New Field
- C. Settings > Field Extractions > Open Field Extraction
- D. Settings > Field Extractions > New Field Extraction

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 223

What approach is recommended when using the Splunk Common Information Model (CIM) add-on to normalize data?

- A. Run a search using the correlation command.

- B. Consult the CIM event type reference tables.
- C. Consult the CIM data model reference tables.
- D. Run a search using the authentication command.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The recommended approach when using the Splunk Common Information Model (CIM) add-on to normalize data is A. Consult the CIM data model reference tables. This is because the CIM data model reference tables provide detailed information about the fields and tags that are expected for each dataset in a data model. By consulting the reference tables, you can determine which data models are relevant for your data source and how to map your data fields to the CIM fields. You can also use the reference tables to validate your data and troubleshoot any issues with normalization. You can find the CIM data model reference tables in the Splunk documentation¹ or in the Data Model Editor page in Splunk Web². The other options are incorrect because they are not related to the CIM add-on or data normalization. The authentication command is a custom command that validates events against the Authentication data model, but it does not help you to normalize other types of data. The correlation command is a search command that performs statistical analysis on event fields, but it does not help you to map your data fields to the CIM fields. The CIM event type reference tables do not exist, as event types are not part of the CIM add-on.

NEW QUESTION # 224

Which of the following options will define the first event in a transaction?

- A. with
- B. firstevent
- C. startswith
- D. startingwith

Answer: C

Explanation:

The explanation is as follows:

* The transaction command is used to find transactions based on events that meet various constraints¹².

* Transactions are made up of the raw text (the `_raw` field) of each member, the time and date fields of the earliest member, as well as the union of all other fields of each member¹.

* The startswith option is used to define the first event in a transaction by specifying a search term or an expression that matches the event¹³.

* For example, `| transaction clientip JSESSIONID startswith="view"` will create transactions based on the clientip and JSESSIONID fields, and the first event in each transaction will contain the term "view" in the `_raw` field².
