NEW QUESTION # 105

You are tasked with designing a prompt for an IBM Watsonx model that will automate customer support responses for a company that sells technical products. The use case requires the model to respond accurately to specific customer inquiries about product troubleshooting.

What is the most effective prompt to use for this scenario?

- A. "Help a customer resolve an issue with our product."
- B. "Based on the following error description, provide a step-by-step solution: 'The device won't power on even after charging for 3 hours.' Be specific and concise in your response."
- C. "Write a creative explanation of how to fix our product when it fails to function properly."
- D. "Write a generic response to help customers with any issue they may have."

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 106

You are tasked with building a Retrieval-Augmented Generation (RAG) system for answering legal questions. The legal documents vary significantly in complexity and structure.

How would you optimize embeddings in this domain to ensure the system retrieves the most relevant documents? (Select two)

- A. Integrate additional metadata (e.g., document date, author) into the embedding representation to improve retrieval.
- B. Train a domain-specific embedding model using legal documents to better capture the nuances of legal terminology.
- C. Use an unsupervised learning approach to generate embeddings, as labeled data is not necessary for improving retrieval performance.
- D. Rely solely on word-level embeddings to capture the meaning of legal phrases and concepts.
- E. Apply dimensionality reduction techniques like PCA to compress embeddings and improve retrieval speed.

Answer: A,B

NEW QUESTION # 107

You are tasked with securing an endpoint for a generative AI model that interacts with external applications.

Which of the following practices is MOST effective in ensuring both security and stability of the model's endpoint in a production environment?

- A. Allow all external applications unrestricted access to the endpoint to facilitate wider model usage.
- B. Limit the number of API calls per minute, restrict prompt lengths, and apply input validation to prevent malicious queries.
- C. Implement strict IP whitelisting and authentication, but allow unfiltered prompts for flexibility.
- D. Focus exclusively on endpoint authentication without enforcing any rate limits to prevent user frustration.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 108

You are tasked with generating synthetic data for a fine-tuning task on an IBM watsonx model. The goal is to mimic the distribution of existing training data while ensuring the synthetic data maintains its statistical similarity to the original. You are provided with two algorithms, Algorithm A (Kolmogorov-Smirnov Test) and Algorithm B, to assess the similarity between the original and synthetic data distributions.

Which of the following best describes how you should implement synthetic data generation using the User Interface and choose the correct algorithm?

- A. Use the User Interface to generate synthetic data and validate it using Algorithm A, which compares the distributions' mean values to ensure close alignment.
- B. Use Algorithm A (Kolmogorov-Smirnov Test) to match the covariance matrix of the original and synthetic data distributions, ensuring high correlation between data points.
- C. Use Algorithm A (Kolmogorov-Smirnov Test) to compare the original and synthetic data distributions, checking for deviations across the entire data range.
- D. Use the User Interface to generate synthetic data and validate it using Algorithm B, which assesses the overall shape of the distributions but does not provide a significance test for statistical similarity.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 109

You are fine-tuning a machine learning model using IBM Watsonx with a dataset that includes sensitive information. You decide to enable differential privacy while generating synthetic data to ensure the privacy of individual records.

What key feature of differential privacy ensures that the synthetic data does not leak private information from the original dataset?

- A. Masking sensitive data fields before creating the synthetic data, ensuring no private information is directly used.
- B. Adding controlled noise to the data, ensuring that no individual's data point is easily distinguishable from aggregate data.
- C. Using clustering techniques to group similar data points, preventing individual-level data from being exposed.
- D. Limiting the number of data points generated to avoid overfitting the synthetic data.

Answer: B
