NEW QUESTION # 143

Which of the following statements describes the balanced Agile testing pyramid?

- A. Many solution tests run by external testers and fewer run by internal team members
- B. Many small, low-level, automated tests & fewer large, manual tests
- C. Many solution tests run by internal team members & fewer run by external testers
- D. Many large, manual tests of the end-to-end solution and fewer small, automated tests

Answer: B

Explanation:

The balanced Agile testing pyramid is a testing strategy that illustrates the distribution of different types of tests in a test suite. It suggests that we should have many unit tests, which are small, low-level, and automated tests that verify the functionality of individual components of the codebase. We should also have many service or integration tests, which are automated tests that verify the interaction and integration of different components or services. Finally, we should have fewer large, manual tests, such as graphical user interface tests or end-to-end tests, which verify the functionality and usability of the whole system from the user's perspective. The balanced Agile testing pyramid helps agile teams to achieve faster feedback, higher quality, and lower maintenance costs. References: The Practical Test Pyramid, What is Testing Pyramid? Answer: D

Explanation:

One benefit of Story acceptance criteria is to provide Story details from a testing point of view. Acceptance criteria are the conditions or rules that a user story must meet to be considered complete and acceptable by the customer or stakeholder. They define the scope and boundaries of the user story and help the team to understand what needs to be done and how to test it. Acceptance criteria also facilitate communication and collaboration between the team and the customer or stakeholder, as they provide a common language and a shared understanding of the expected outcome.
